EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

OF course if Tilden has revived John Kelly will be frisky.

READYMADE Cabinets are not being put on the market so rapidly as they were.

THE people have pinned their faith to the Garfield pluck, and it looks as if they would not be disappointed.

THE gifted but somewhat lapsed Hendricks emerges from obscurity long enough to remark that the drudgery on the Supreme Bench of the United States is so great that he would not accept a position there. What, not if he could straddle it?

TAMMANY has adopted a series of resolutions against anti-monopoly which indicate a disposition on its part to join the oleomargarine-glucose Reform party. That would make a beautiful combination, and if it were seriously proposed every man outside the interested squads would vote for it enthusiastically.

MR. LUDLOW, the Prohibition candidate for Governor of Ohio, is a manufacturer of cider mills. Yet cider will become "hard," and when in that condition has been known to intoxicate. Mr. Ludlow seems to be in favor of producing a beverage and then prohibiting its use. He may argue that cider has innocent uses. So has whiskey.

Not a Democratic newspaper has been received at this office which has had a word to say against the Democratic scheme to steal control of the United States Senate by keeping Senator Miller out of his seat on a bogus objection. These journals of the party which are not openly advocating the scheme are silent about it. The Democracy is a fine old party—to keep in perpetual minority.

THIS is evidently a critical year for Bourbonism. With a fair election and a fair count in Mississippi there is not the slightest doubt but that the State will go against the Bourbons by at least 20,000 majority. Colonel King, the opposition candidate, has declared that the votes will be counted, and has intimated pretty plainly that there will be trouble if attempts are made to prevent it. The Bourbons snatch up this declaration eagerly, accuse him of inciting violence and tell him that he may get more than he wants if he does not have a care. This is the regulation Bourbon swagger, but Colonel King is too familiar with it to be alarmed by it.

SENATOR PUGH, of Alabama, says he does not for a moment believe that Senator elect Miller, of New York, will be allowed to take his seat until an investigation is had of all the circumstances of his election. Mr. Pugh thus puts himself in accord with his party press in this State, which has been working zealously of late to make out a case against Mr. Miller's right to his seat. The objection the Democratic editors advance is that a majority of the entire Legislature did not vote for him, but only a majority of a quorum. The men who are raising the objection know well enough that it has no weight whatever. There is not the slightest doubt that Mr. Miller was honestly and legally elected. The Democratic scheme is to keep him out of his seat long enough to gain control of the Senate and capture its organization. Mr. Pugh says he is in favor of it. Mr. Beck says he is against it. There is, unhappily, little reason to doubt that the former is the more accurate representative of Democratic sentiment.

What is the Matter?

The Watchman of the 2d inst., under the caption "Don't Falter," submits to its Democratic readers a very remarkable editorial, one that must be rather unsavory reading to some, if not most of them. It says: "Our county ticket is an excellent one, and will do us honor if elected, as it will be, unless our voters willfully and wickedly stay away from the polls."

The italics are ours. Is not this most extraordinary language to address to the Democracy of Centre county at the commencement of a campaign? Is there any probability of the excellent Democratic ticket not being elected? Is there any danger of the good Democrats of Centre being so lost to all sense of loyalty to the party as to suffer themselves to "willfully" and "wickedly" stay away from the polls?

If there is no danger, why use such language? Why should the organ of Meekism charge that there is even a possibility of Democrats doing anything willfully wicked? Is it because this excellent ticket smacks a little too much of Meekism, and bossism, to be smoothly swallowed by the better Democrats of Centre county, who begin to realize that they have been hewers of wood and drawers of water about long enough to gratify the "Meek machine." There certainly must be some cause for this lament, and the use of such harsh words concerning the Democrats of Centre county by the Watchman.

But this is not all. In the same article the Watchman says, "Suppose through indifference, apathetic indolence or stubbornness the Democrats of Centre county should refuse to turn out in their strength and the Republicans should carry the county wouldn't it be instantly heralded all over the State as a grand Republican triumph and wouldn't all the Republican papers boast that the backbone of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania had been broken?" Again the italics are ours. This effusion is more remarkable still than the first quoted. What is wrong with the Democrats, that the Watchman should insinuate that there may probably be a Republican triumph in Centre county this fall, because of the "indifference, apathetic indolence or stubbornness" of the Democrats? Is not this surprising and even alarming? Does the probability of the defeat of Meekism this fall so stare the doughty editor of the Watchman in the face, that he sounds the note of alarm and is preparing to charge home that defeat upon the wicked, apathetic, indolent and stubborn Democrats of Centre county? Oh, horror of horrors! But in order to impress upon the Democratic leaders the importance of standing up to the ticket that acknowledges Meekism as its boss, the Watchman assumes that the Democratic party of Centre county is the backbone of the Democratic party in the State. Because he says the Republican papers would boast if the ticket of Meekism should be defeated "that the backbone of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania had been broken." Wonderful assumption! What will old Berks, that rolls up her 7000 democratic majority, and Clearfield, with her 2000 Democratic majority, think of this?

Is it possible, if a boss by political conniving puts in nomination a county ticket, part of which is exceedingly unpalatable, and should not command the support of good citizens and intelligent voters, and if the independent voters should reject a part of it in a county that gives about 800 Democratic majority that then the result must be the breaking of the backbone of the great Democratic party in the State of Pennsylvania. If any thing so slight as that would break the backbone of the Democratic party in the State, then its backbone must be a very slim affair.

But it is not long since that the Watchman used its columns to compass the defeat of the Democratic ticket in part that was not to its liking. We believe that in the campaign of 1878, when Governor Curtin was regularly nominated for Congress by the Democratic party, not of Centre county alone, but by the Democratic party of the Twentieth Congressional District representing 5000 of a Democratic majority, the Watchman was so willfully wicked, so indifferent, and full of apathetic indolence and stubbornness as to not only not vote for Governor Curtin but to persuade others not to vote for him.

Now, if there was no danger of breaking the backbone of the Democratic party in the State, when the Watchman contributed to the defeat of the party in this Congressional District three years ago, it is not very probable that the defeat of a part of the ticket that peculiarly represents Meekism in Centre county will seriously affect the backbone of the great Democratic party in the State.

Certainly the Watchman is uneasy, else why sound the alarm? This anxiety on part of the Watchman should induce the Republicans to put in the field a most worthy ticket, one that would commend itself to all good citizens and intelligent voters.

A Bad Record.

The record of domestic tragedies as revealed in the newspapers of one day last week is remarkable. In Milwaukee, Herman Hilden shot his mother and her paramour, in Boston, Francis C. Pease murdered his wife and attempted to commit suicide; in Willimantic, William Nye endeavored to kill his young wife, failing, killed himself; in Troy, Ala., David Johnson shot and killed his father, who was maltreating his mother; in New York, George Ryan was arrested for endeavoring to kill his wife by striking her with an axe; in Pulaski, Tenn., Fletcher Hargrave shot and killed M. P. Ezeel, who was in company with a man who was eloping with Hargrave's sister; in Chicago, James B. Duncan killed Thomas H. Lowry, of whom he was jealous; in Dubuque, of the McMahon family two died insane, two became insane in consequence, and the father, the only survivor, is ill unto death; in Tarrytown, George Baldwin was killed while defending his son from the attack of two negroes. A peculiarity of this lurid record is that none of the tragedies took place in the far West.

ILLINOIS is grievously afflicted. It is unfortunate enough to contain the birthplace of Guiteau, and to have an editor who openly rejoices in Guiteau's crime. Guiteau was born in Freeport, and his admirer edits a Democratic newspaper in Quincy. On August 11, he published this astounding observation: "We believe Guiteau to be just as honorable as the man he shot, and a mighty sight less dangerous to the country at large than that plausible, smooth-tongued, unprincipled man." When this fiendish observation created excitement in the community, H. N. Wheeler, the editor repeated it with the additional offensive remark that when Garfield died there would be no national sorrow. He has continued to make similar observations since, and to defend them at great length. The citizens of the town have burned him in effigy side by side with Guiteau, and that is the way he should be coupled hereafter He is killing himself fast enough.

THE only sign of a Bookwalter boom in Ohio thus far has been the dedication of Mr. Bookwalter's new opera house in Springfield, which occurred on Monday evening. The Emma Abbott Company furnished noise. Mr. Bookwalter bowed gracefully, and, as the night was very warm, the whole audience was in a melting mood. Miss Abbott pronounced the new building too lovely for anything; but whether this "indorsement" will elect Mr. Bookwalter Governor of Ohio remains to be seen.

Law in the Barbarous States.

There is something exceedingly mysterious about lynching. Take, for instance, the case which occurred on the 21st inst. at Orange, Texas. A gang of desperadoes, called after their leader the Delmo gang, incensed against the sheriff, beguiled him into an ambush and shot him, so that possibly he will die. Upon this the citizens arose in their might and resolved to hang or shoot, without judge or jury, every member of the Delmo gang. A committee of 150 citizens proceeded to business. Four of the evil-doers were captured and shot; then another was taken and hung; then another and yet another was arrested and locked up, but the citizens, not satisfied with this, took them out, and they too were put to death. Such, succinctly told, is the story of the Orange, Texas, lynching. Everybody knows that this method of administering substantial justice is a bad one, and the only possible plea in its behalf is that is necessary to the community. The question is of its necessity. Here, for instance, was a town of which a large majority of the population was upon the side of law and order.

It had a jail, presumable a good one; it had a sheriff; a big posse comitatus with judges and courts, and a plenty of law. Against all this force, a mere handful of villains were arrayed. Now, we do not understand why, matters being thus arranged and the moral force thus distributed, it was necessary to violate the law in order to punish these criminals. Had they been properly indicted and tried by a jury, in a legally constituted tribunal, they would have been convicted and duly sentenced. All the instincts of the public being right, juries drawn from the public, and judges selected by the public, would have been right also. Why then was it necessary to take these extra-judicial proceedings? The true answer to this question probably is that the lynchers knew that the punishment of these wrong-doers would not, according to law, be capital. Such they determined to inflict, and thus they became the instruments of injustice, and law-breakers themselves. How far they have helped matters by this violence, time will show. Not much, we suspect.

THE following circular has been issued by the National Republican League:

PHILADELPHIA, August 24th, 1881.

To the Delegates Elected to the Republican State Convention:

We address you in full confidence that you will not make the mistake of supposing the nomination of a candidate for State Treasurer at the present time to be a matter of minor importance, and that the outcome of your deliberations will show that you have been guided by wise counsels, and have had regard solely to the best interests of the party. Though the office of Treasurer is not in itself one of the highest moment, it so happens that this is the first Republican State Convention which has assembled since the new issues arose within the party, and upon you will rest the responsibility of saying where the Republicans of Pennsylvania shall stand. Back of the question of a candidate lies the question whether the party is to enter the campaign wheeled into line beside the wounded President of the United States, or beside the late Senator from New York and his adherents; and by your choice you will determine it. It has now become reasonably certain that the forces that compelled the last State Convention in Pennsylvania to support a policy which, if it had not been defeated at Chicago, would have been ruinous to the party and disastrous to the country, will be brought to bear upon you. All the influences that are potent in swaying the actions of men will be exerted upon you to induce you to attempt to reverse the events of the last two years, full as this period is with the story of Republican prosperity and success; to prevail upon you to set your approval upon a policy which has met deserved condemnation, and to put yourself in opposition to the sentiment of good men everywhere, and the head of the party and the nation. The attempt will be made, notwithstanding the fact that the wishes of the great majority of the masses of the party are manifested too plainly to be mistaken, in the hope that any result will be accepted. But we ask you to remember, for the welfare of the organization so dear to us all, and whose future is now so full of promise, that, in the changed condition of things, party ties can no longer compel men to say, by their votes, that that is right which they know to be wrong; and to forget this fact is to insure disaster and defeat. The resolute determination of hundreds of thousands of Republicans not to vote in favor of a third term in the Presidency, if the issue had been forced on them, the recent change of party control in the strongly Republican cities of Philadelphia and Pittsburg are only warnings to the wise; but to blind or perverse they mean wreck and destruction. However much our party pride might wish it were otherwise, these are the facts, and it behooves you and all of us to recognize them.

THE effects of the drouth have been bad enough in the East; but in the West the outlook is still more discouraging. In Southern Indiana, for instance, the situation is deplorable. The corn crop, it is said, will not be one-fourth, or one-half at the most, as abundant as it was last year. Late potatoes in many counties will not be worth the digging. The tobacco crop is ruined. Grass in meadow lands has been burned to a crisp, and the ground will have to be resown. Farmers in many instances are selling their surplus live stock to avoid the expense of wintering the animals. The ground is so hard that ploughing is impossible, and unless rain falls abundantly fall sowing will be delayed until the last of September or October. Water in some counties has to be hauled from three to twelve miles for domestic and stock uses, as the streams are dried up. Much suffering among the poor the coming winter may be feared in the East as well as in the West unless a change for the better comes quickly, for the price of provisions and cereals will be unusually high, and the demand, and consequently the price, will be increased by the failure of the British harvests.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5th 8.30 a. m. The President was somewhat restless up to midnight, but slept well after he had taken and retained the nourishment administered. His pulse is less frequent than yesterday. Pulse 102, temperature 98.5, respiration 18.

IT seems a little harsh to say it, but it is a self-evident truth that nothing ever swerves the Democratic party from its purpose to steal every office which appears to be within its reach.

Whence Blanche Douglass's Anxiety.

Miss Blanche Douglass, in the very attempts which she is making to establish the fact of her innocence, is constantly furnishing grounds for suspicion that she is not wholly without knowledge of the cause and manner of Jennie Cramer's death, though she may have had no complicity in the crime—if crime there was.

She says that as soon as she heard of the death of Miss Cramer she went to the store of Mr. Malley and saw Walter and James, and asked them if the report was true. They confirmed it. Then the three took a walk together and talked the matter over in the street. She told the Malleys that she desired to go at once to New York, and assigned as a reason that she did not want to be mixed up in the matter.

Now, how could she have any fear or apprehension of being mixed up in the matter if, as she steadfastly maintains, she had not seen Jennie Cramer for two or three days before her death, and had no knowledge or belief as to the cause of her death?

While it is not yet shown that a murder was committed, or if a murder was committed that the Malleys or Blanche Douglass had any hand in it, the conduct of all three of these persons draws suspicion upon themselves.

It is said that kerosene will remove stains from furniture. It has also been known to remove the furniture, stains and all, with the stove and a red-headed servant girl thrown in ofttimes.

Blinded With Pepper.

Mention was made in our dispatches last week of a brutal assault on John L. Henry, of York, by his wife. The York Dispatch furnishes the following particulars:

Yesterday afternoon, shortly after the Dispatch had gone to press, a quarrel took place between John L. Henry and his wife, when Mrs. Henry drew a handful of cayenne pepper from her pocket and dashed it into her husband's face filling his eyes, nose, ears and mouth, and covering his breast and shoulders. Mr. Henryran into the street, rolling in terrible agony, tearing handsful of hair from his head, attempting to gouge his eyes out, and calling upon the bystanders to end his torture by killing him. His cries brought a number of persons to the scene, which was so terrible that tears were drawn to eyes that had long been guiltless of shedding them. Mr. Henry was taken to the residence of Frederick Fisher, his brother-in-law, near by, and Dr. Beltz summoned, who did what he could to relieve the suffering man. When the lids of the eyes were pulled down the inner skin, which had been eaten by the fiery pepper, rolled out, and it is doubtful whether the eyesight can be saved. Mrs. Henry was interrogated this morning as to her husband's condition, and replied that she had not seen him; he was at Fisher's.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry keep a bakery on South George street, which is said to be owned by the latter. They have lived upon bad terms for some time, it is said, and have had frequent quarrels, Mr. Henry leaving her at one time for over a year, when he returned. The cause of the last quarrel appears to have grown out of a whipping which he administered to his son, as yesterday Mrs. Henry entered suit before Justice Patterson, charging her husband with assault and battery on his minor son and also for threatening to kill Mrs. Henry. Officer Ruby went to the house to serve the warrant, and arrived just after the brutal assault had been made with the pepper. Mrs. Henry afterwards sent to the magistrate's office and withdrew the suits.

The Rash Act of a Betrayed Girl.

At eight o'cock last evening a well dressed young woman daliberately leaped into the Delaware from Lombard street wharf, Philadelphia. A young man named James Carr, observing the act, attempted to rescue her and with some difficulty succeeded in bringing her up, feet foremost. After an ineffectual attempt at resuscitation the body was taken to the station house, and the corpse lay unknown for some hours. At about 12 o'clock it was identified as the body of Louisa Huber. The girl had been betrayed under promise of marriage, and had about ten months ago given birth to a child at Blokley Almshouse. The child was adopted by an unknown party, and about five months since the unhappy mother received tidings of its death. This deepened the melancholy which had for months possessed her, and she frequently spoke in a hopeless and despairing manner of destroying her life. Her relatives did not, however, think that she would take so desperate a step and when, at about seven o'clock last evening, she left her home to take a walk, as she said, no anxiety was experienced on her behalf. As she leaped into the river by eight, she must have walked directly from her home to death. Miss Huber was singularly beautiful and was only nineteen years of age.

Frank Ward, about twenty-eight years old, formerly employed at Simon's clothing store, at 1634 Market street, committed suicide yesterday by jumping into the Schuylkill river at Chesnut street. His body was recovered by the Harvard police. The youug man is said to have been given somewhat to intemperance. He visited the clothing store where he had formerly worked, in the afternoon, and stated his intention of jumping into the river, but no attention was paid to him. He is said to have made an attempt at self destruction earlier in the afternoon, but was rescued in time to save his life.

A young lady who went fishing yesterday morning says she had "splendid luck." She got a boy to put the bait on her hook as soon as she got to the river, and she fished four hours without having to take a nasty worm in her fingers to renew the bait. She didn't get a bite, but that was a secondary matter.—Norristown Herald.

Johnny Skae, of San Francisco, was once worth $10,000,000. One night last week he was committed to jail in San Francisco in default of the payment of $5 fine for drunkenness.

Our Story Teller.

WHO KILLED HER?

Jennie Cramer and the Plot which Caused Her Death.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., August 27.—Jennie Cramer was in many respects a handsome girl. She had a pretty face, a stylish figure, graceful movements, and dressed with becoming taste. She was the pride of her parents and the joy of an only brother who held a good position in New York and spent part of his earnings in helping his parents to educate his sister and dress her. She was modest and prepossessing in speech, acts and looks, as well as a somewhat showy girl, and almost everyone in New Haven knew the comely daughter of Mr. Cramer the tobacconist. She had just crossed the threshold of that part of life where girlhood blossoms into womanhood, when she dallied and fell. In the grove of great elms which shade the three principal churches of this place and surround Yale College she often walked in summer evenings. The great trees which make it a resort stand there as fresh and green to-day as they did before this country was known to civilized man.

The great branches which stretch across the walks and drives furnish beautiful and romantic avenues, delightful spots for rest from the summer heat or for strolling in the gloaming to enjoy the summer twilight. One evening when Jennie Cramer was walking in this historic grove, she meet James Malley. He is a fast young man, of dashing appearance, and has rich relatives. The hazard of a hankerchief flirtation broke through the protecting powor society and propriety erect between strangers of the opposite sexes, and this dangerous introduction was the first step along the road which led the poor girl to her grave. The first one taken the succeeding ones came easier, and the two frequently saw each other in the grove which nature left and the people of New Haven have saved for a park. Finally notes came from James Malley to the young girl at her home, and the family knew of the acquaintance. Whether they were flattered with the dangerous attentions of this rich and dashing young man to their daughter may never be known but they knew that it existed and permitted it to continue until it destroyed the light of their lives and brought shame upon the family name.

"I MET HIM IN THE PARK."

"I first met James Malley in the Park," said the young girl between her sobs, when the angry mother was chiding her for staying from home that Wednesday night when doubtless the first crime of her life was committed. This single utterance shows that the evening walk among the elms and yielding to the first temptation to flirt opened the door to the dark way into which James Malley's infamy finally led the reluctant girl to death. A word of warning from the mother when the acquaintance began would doubtless have saved the girl's life, reputation and the family name. But it was not spoken, and the girl drifted from under the protection of home and was lost.

Modest, and naturally good, Jennie Cramer did not easily fall a prey to young Malley's lust. As each step in the fearful tragedy is being unfolded, it would seem that she resisted all improper advances, and he finally found it necessary to bring new aid to his own infamous efforts to ruin the young and innocent girl. He had a cousin Walter Malley, who was a fit partner for such a crime. He, too, was young and fast, drove his speedy horses, kept a mistress, and had other alliances of the most demoralizing character. His father was wealthy and powerful. He keeps a store facing the College Park, in which James Malley, his nephew, and Jennie Cramer first became acquainted. It is an extensive establishment, something like Noah's ark, having a little of everything in it or like your Wanamaker's Grand Depot, only smaller. Just across the street in another building owned by the elder Malley, these two young men had furnished rooms for their assignations, and in one of these it is believed Jennie Cramer met her death, although the first crime was committed in the elder Malley's own house. Walter evidently readily consented to help James set the snares to capture his game, and for that purpose brought from New York Blanche Douglass, his mistress, who although younger than Jennie Cramer in years, was much older in vice.

BLANCHE DOUGLASS' PART.

The plot was well played between the three and each one played their part and are still playing it with adroit boldness. The Cramer girl was brought into contact with the New York woman, who acted her part in the crime with great skill. She played the respectable upon the unsuspecting girl until the two became quite friends before the two young men appeared conspicuously upon the scene. Jennie visited the Malleys' stool-pigeon at the New Haven House where she had other friends, and it was here the two young men came Wednesday nights just four weeks and a half ago and began the assault upon the young girl's virtue which ended in her death. When they came to the hotel the road was easier because the force was greater and the reluctant girl was enticed from the public house where it was dangerous to play as bold a game as was necessary, to the silent home of Walter Malley from which the other inmates had gone to the sea shore. What took place between the girl and her seducers no one may ever know, but enough testimony has been secured to show that the hesitating girl was dragged from one step to another until wine, drugs and force led her to a bed of shame, where her ruin was accomplished. If the truth can ever be known about this terrible crime; if the veil is ever lifted from the mystery of that Wednesday night in the Malley mansion, when those two men and that fallen woman lured that beautiful girl to her death it will, I believe, show a picture of shameful crime, such as has rarely, if ever, disgraced our civilization. What little is already known of the crime from the halting investigation now in progress is bad enough, but the truth must be infinitely worse.

"BE GENTLE WITH THE ERRING."

"Jennie has spent the first night of her life away from home in bad company," said the stricken and angry mother when scolding Jennie on Thursday morning after the first terrible night with the Malleys and Blanche Douglass at Walter Malley's home.

Jennie Cramer went home in the morning, and the shameless woman who doubtless gave the final momentum to the success of the conspiracy against her virtue went with her. Jennie's mother rebuked her severely for this first wayward act, and said angrily:

"Why didn't you come home last night?"

Jennie between her sobs could only say: "Oh, mamma they would not let me, they would not let me."

The Douglass girl put in a silly apology, but shed no light upon the crime and gave no evidence of how Jennie had pleaded for her liberty, only to get more wine or drugs and stronger restraint.

It does not seem that Jennie Cramer was even an obstinate girl, for she appeared contrite and only pleaded weakness. Doubtless the mother might have had her daughter to-day if instead of rebuking her so sternly she had taken care to shield her from further harm and kept her surrounded by the protection of home.

Angry words evidently drove the poor girl into the street, where the Malleys and the wily woman who plotted her ruin found her. How determined they were that she should not escape is shown from the fact that one of the Malleys, when he found that she was out again from the protection of her own rooftree, and fearing she might go to New York to her brother, boarded a train and went to Bridgeport to intercept her, while the other young man and woman sought her about the streets. They found her and then began again the final debouch which ended in her death.

THE DEATH STRUGGLE.

What happened that fatal day and night all the ingenuity of lawyers and the untrained acumen of juries have as yet been unable to find out. It is believed that, meeting her desperate companions again and smarting under the angry rebuke she had received at home, she spent the day quietly at several different places of resort about New Haven. When night came, however, the Douglass woman and the Malleys' own witness says she was plied with wine and, the medical expert adds, drugs. "We drank ten glasses of wine," said Blanche Douglass, "and the boys drank none." All the testimony points to the truth of the story that when Jennie had been induced to drink wine freely, the two girls were taken by the Malleys to the rooms in the Malley building, where doubtless from drugs and excessive drinking Jennie died. It is probable that the facts and the true story of those terrible hours which followed the girl's departure from her home for the last time and her death will never be known. It may be that those who were either the direct or indirect cause of her death may never be adequately punished for the great crime, but a startling story is behind all the mystery which now envelops the girl's death.

A day or two since I stood upon the summit of the rugged ledge of rocks which juts out at the point where New Haven Bay blends into Long Island Sound. It is a sort of summer resort and a hotel and number of cottages face the water but sit in the shade of the grove. The point upon which I stood is called Savin Rock, and by this name the whole place is called.

Four weeks ago to-day a shore policeman making his rounds, almost before the rising glances of the morning sun could gild the tops of the trees with gold, found the body of Jennie Cramer upon the beach being gently washed by the sluggish waves. A coroner's inquest hurriedly called rendered a careless verdict of suicide, and the body was taken home by the stricken parents and buried.

The death naturally caused momentary excitement, but it was fast dying away except among the close friends of the girl or her family, when the story as above told began to leak out and the newspapers made an inquiry which resulted in the arrest of the two Malleys and their accomplice. It is doubtful whether there would to-day be public thought of the poor girl who was so cruelly wronged, if not murdered, by two young scapegraces, whose means and social standing first made the authorities sluggish, if not indifferent, and has at times made the investigation a halting farce. There was no evidence of drowning when the body was found. There was nothing about the form or features to show that violence had produced death or that the girl had committed suicide, as it has been and still is the effort of the Malleys to show. Blanche Douglass, the wretched creature, who has played her part so well in this drama of crime and shame, still maintains so many different attitudes as to the case and makes so many declarations about it that her testimony for anybody or about anything is valueless.

THE STORY OF THE ACCOMPLICE.

Since the newspapers started the inquiry and spurred the tardy authorities to a legal investigation there has been many strange features of the case developed. A prominent lawyer of New Haven said to me:

'There is no dependence whatever to be placed on Blanche Douglass' story, and the Malleys have reached that conclusion. It is now known that she and the two Malleys spent most of the Sunday after Jennie Cramer's body was found in a prominent lawyer's office in this city concocting the story to be told in case of exposure.'

When it came the truth broke the thread of fiction which they had agreed upon, and it has not been within the power of man to join it. All the appliances of wealth and high social standing have been invoked to do the work, but they have failed, and the shameless woman whose aid James Malley invoked in his desperate game has been proven a willful liar on a dozen points. She swore that she had not seen her victim alive after 11 o'clock on Thursday morning, but the testimony at the last sitting of the jury was conclusive that they were seen together at various times after the hour she named, both in the afternoon and evening of that fatal day. The alibi the young Malleys attempted to prove was thus disproved and the chain of truth is growing tighter and tighter about the young men, who put themselves in the hands of a wanton both before and after the crime. The last testimony leaves little room for doubt but that James Malley will be held for murder and the two others as accessories. The next meeting of the Coroner's inquest will be an important one because it will follow in the wake of the evidence which came to-day with crushing force when the Malleys thought, and the public too, that it was doubtful whether a case could be made against them. The two young men are confined in the same jail where the Rev. Mr. Hayden was imprisoned when charged with the murder of poor Mary Stannard. There is something of similarity in these two cases, as both deaths occurred and the bodies were found within the same township jurisdiction. A great point is gained, now that the prosecution has been able to prove that Jennie Cramer was seen with Blanche Douglass at Savin Rock the day before her body was found upon the beach. It is believed that this is why she was laid upon this beach when death had drawn its dark shadow over her eyes in the room in the Malley building in New Haven. The universal belief is that being found dead, her body was driven out to Savin Rock under the cover of night and laid upon the sand that the waves might be accused of her murder. Powerful as has been the appliances that have been summoned to shield these two young men and cover the death of this girl with a mantle of mystery, it seems now probable that enough of the truth will be gathered to raise the veil high enough for justice to get its hands upon the criminals. The fresh evidence, which positively contradicts Blanche Douglass and makes her useless as a witness, revives the interest and directs public thought and opinion against the two young men.

Local Small Talk.

—On an average about eighty tons of ore are shipped from Bellefonte daily.

—The all-absorbing question now is, "When, oh, when will we have rain?"

—Houtzdale has over two hundred buildings under the process of erection, among which is a $11,000 school house.

—Mr. McKever, of the Brockerhoff, House, it is rumored, will soon retire from the management of that establishment.

—Wm. P. Duncan & Co. will shortly build a new fore-bayat the head of the race that supplies their works with water power.

—Farmers report that in some portions of the county where the roads are used to any extent dust is found at least five inches deep.

—Master Willie Doak, who was burned severely a few weeks ago, has so far recovered that he is now considered entirely out of danger.

—Work on the new Lamb street bridge continues, and if the present rate of progress is kept up the structure will be complete in a few weeks.

—While the Snow Shoe crew were shipping cars about the different sidings Wednesday a car loaded with lime stone was accidentally shoved off the track.

—A young man named Gilmore had a foot mashed at the car shops on Tuesday in moving a car. He will probably be laid up several weeks with it.

—A son of Jacob Sagnor, residing near Milesburg, accidentally shot himself in the knee Tuesday while out in the woods gunning. Dr. Hibler of this place was telephoned for, when he dressed the wound.

—The Lycoming county fair will be held at Williamsport this mohth, commencing on the 20th and continuing four days. A prominent feature of the occasion will be a trotting match between celebrated horses from abroad.

—Henry Fryer, who was convicted of larceny recently, having stolen a quantity of meat in Penn township about six months ago, was on Tuesday sentenced by Judge Mayer to pay a fine of $50, costs of prosecution, and to undergo an imprisonment of one month in jail.

—Owing to the unusual drought now prevailing, boating on the West Branch canal has been entirely suspended. Sufficient water cannot be furnished to float a craft, and everywhere boats loaded with merchandise of all kinds are found unable to reach their destination.

—A lady who was leaving on the mail west Tuesday night had the misfortune to step into one of those nasty holes on the depot platform, thereby severely spraining an ankle. We suppose when somebody is either killed outright or maimed for life Bellefonte will get some decent railroad accommodations.

—The public schools of this borough will open in the following order: On Wednesday, Sept. 7th, all the up stairs schools; and on Thursday, the 8th, all the schools down stairs. The principal requests that there be a full attendance in order that the promotions of those who were examined in June last maytake place, and also new scholars examined and properly classified.

—We learn from our Lock Haven exchanges that the old Mill Hall furnace, lately leased by Mr. Austin Curtin, of this county, is about ready to begin operations. A new sixty-horse power engine is placed in position, and new machinery arranged for the manufacture of iron. They expect, after once getting fully under headway, to erect a rolling mill in connection with the furnace.

—A couple of boys in front of McFarlane's hardware store got into a wrangle Thursday afternoon, and if their physical powers were as strong as their language it would require a regiment of men to subdue their rebellious spirits. After quarreling for some time Mr. Bush went to the rescue of modesty, and the boys separated. If some parents in Bellefonte don't draw the reigns a little tighter on their children they will wake up some time and find them in State prison if not on the gallows.

Dwelling House Burned.

A dwelling house near Boilings Springs, owned by Mr. Thomas Shearer, a blacksmith, was burned to the ground at an early hour Tuesday morning, together with all its contents, Mr. Shearer and his family barely escaping with their lives. The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed to have originated from the back flue. At about 5 o'clock, Mr. Shearer says, he awoke his son and sent him down to the kitchen to start a fire for breakfast. He then returned to bed and fell into a doze, but just how long he slumbered he is unable to say. Finally he was awakened by someone rushing up stairs screaming fire and carrying a bucket of water. Mr. Shearer immediately jumped to his feet, seized the water and going to the garret threw the water on the rapidly-burning timbers. He soon returned with the bucket, and seizing a child in each arm hastened down stairs and with another bucketful of water returned to the garret. So rapidly did it burn that when he returned cinders were falling on the bed upon which a sleeping child was lying. He then turned his attention to the child and what articles of furniture he could get out of the house. In a very few minutes the whole building was enveloped in flames, and besides getting his family and a few articles of wearing apparel out, Mr. Shearer loses everything. We understand, however, an insurance of $1,000 was had on the property destroyed, which will about let him out. Not even enough provision was saved for a single meal, and the unfortunate family depended on neighbors for something to eat.

A Phenomenon.

A correspondent writing from Glenn Harris relates the following singular circumstance regarding the water of a spring near that place:

Isaac Lucas, one of P. B. Crider & Son's jobbers in this place, while dipping water from a spring one night observed a vapor rising to the top of the water, where it sparkles like fire. You can gather it in your hand and it will stay bright for a while and then turn into a sort of an oily substance. Quite a number of persons have come here to witness this wonderful curiosity, and all of whom can vouch for the truthfulness of this statement. The spring is located at the mouth of Birch Lick Hollow, and your correspondent has seen both the spring and the strange phenomenon frequently.

The Order System.

We have lately been asked many questions in relation to a recent act passed by the late Legislature concerning the issuing of store orders, but were unable to give any satisfaction in regard to the matter. The following item relative to the subject we find in an exchange, and we publish it for the benefit of those concerned:

On and after Sept. 1st, Act No. 73, approved by the Governor on the 29th day of June, 1881, makes it unlawful for any person, firm, company, corporation or association, to pay their employees for work or service with orders, and any firm paying in any other way than by lawful money of the United States or by cash order shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars, which shall go to the common school fund.

Halfmoon Pickings.

We had a picnic near Stormstown on Saturday last called a Union Sunday-school picnic. It was well attended in the afternoon, and as usual everybody enjoyed themselves. But just why the Stormstowners always hold their picnics in the afternoon is a question yet to be answered.

The grandest picnic of the season will be held at Hannah Furnace on Saturday, September 10th, and to which everybody is invited. Music for the occasion will be furnshed by the Tyrone and Philipsburg bands, and all those who are fortunate enough to attend may prepare themselves to have a good time.

The Rev. Mr. Beyer, of this place, is printing a four-page paper called the Weekly. He hands it gratuitously to his members from the pulpit each Sabbath. Its contents are the ways and doings of each appointment, and the advertisements of a couple of Stormstown merchants also appear. The reverand gentleman is making a strong anti-tobacco journal of it and altogether it is a very readable paper.

—The dairymen, or at least part of them, Thursday served notices to their customers that hereafter they would charge ten cents a quart for milk. This is probably the result of the water famine.

From the Daily News, Sept. 2.

The Injured Tramp.

The tramp, who was taken to the poor house on Wednesday evening by Overseer Bayard, an account of which appeared in our issue of yesterday and who was said to have severely injured one of his knees by falling on the hard pavement in front of Harper's store, turns out to be nothing more nor less than a first-class imposter. Dr. Hibler was called at the time Mr. Tramp was supposed to have been injured, and after chartering a hack, they hauled him to the poor house, where he was treated in princely style and every thing possible done to relieve his "sufferings" until morning. After leaving some medicine for him and surprising his stomach with a good square meal, the doctor and overseer left him in charge of the authorities at the poor house for the night. Early yesterday morning Dr. Hibler and Overseer Bayard again visited the borough alms house to look after the temporal wants of the afflicted tramp. After making a cursory examination without a satisfactory result, they made his trampship undress so that they could make a more careful examination of his injuries. This he at first refused to do, but after some expostulation he finally complied with the request. Imagine their surprise and indignation when after carefully examining him from head to foot and failing to find a scratch on his body, or anything whatever wrong with him he broke out laughing in their faces. The tramp enjoyed the whole affair hugely, and was having a royal time at the borough's expense. If the joke wasn't so rich we would suggest that the tramp be arrested and imprisoned for his action, but under the circumstances we cannot. The question now bothering us is who is going to pay for hauling him to the poor house. It's not safe to mention tramp to either the doctor or overseer.

More About the Drouth.

We take from the Harrisburg Telegraph the following in regard to the effect the continued drouth is having on railroads in the matter of supplying engines with sufficient water for stream and other purposes.

"The prevailing drouth has had the effect of causing much embarrassment to railroad companies in keeping up the supplies of water at their watering stations for locomotives, as nearly all these stations are fed from small streams which have become dried up, and the tanks which they fed must now be supplied from a great distance by trains run expressly for that purpose. The Pennsylvania railroad company has suffered severely from this water famine to get the necessary supply for its vast motive power. It finds it very difficult to get sufficient water to run its shops at Altoona. Trains of tanks are run constantly for the purpose of distributing water at different points to keep cisterns filled at which locomotives get their supply. This water is obtained from streams along the line of the road by means of pumps, a large number of which are at work in different localities on the Middle division.

The same conditions prevail along all the roads centering at this city, the drouth being such as to dry up small streams, springs and mills. On the Northern Central, on its upper division, suction pumps are erected at different points, where water can be had other than the usual localities to apply motive power. The Reading road, and all other roads in the eastern part of the State, are put to the same trouble and expense of getting water for their motive power.

"Farmers in very many parts of the county, and near the city especially, are cutting their corn for the fodder, as no prospect whatever exists of anything like a crop of corn being had this season. Rain would not save the corn or potato crop."

Pleasant Gap News.

The regular correspondent from this place being very irregular with his letters, I will attempt to supply the deficiency for a time. At the festival held on Friday and Saturday evenings of last week, upwards of $70 were netted for the Methodist church. The Pleasant Gap band furnished excellent music for the occasion. The ladies deserve especial comment for their untiring efforts to make it a success.

Gotlieb Haag is making some extensive repairs on his grist mill by putting in another set of burs.

Mrs. Cheesman, daughter, and Miss Ada Sweeney, granddaughter, of Mr. John Sweeney, have been visiting the latter. They returned to their home in West Lebanon Ind., yesterday.

PAT.

—Deputy Sheriff Spangler on Tuesday morning had quite an encounter with a Penn township lunatic named Frank Rote, who has been confined in the county prison for some time. He had been rather docile in his manner lately, and the Sheriff allowed him the freedom of the prison corridor. Tuesday morning he became very insulting and abusive towards everyone with whom he came in contact, and when the Deputy attempted to place him in a cell he turned on him, and it was not until after a terrible struggle that he was conquered. Rote is said to be a powerful man, and when these fits seize him he is pretty hard to handle.

THE LATEST NEWS.

The President.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2. 8.30 a. m. The President slept well during the night, and this morning his condition is in all probability as favorable as yesterday at the same hour. Pulse 100, temperature 98, resp. 17.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2. 1.30 p. m. The President's condition has not materially changed since this morning's bulletin was issued. Pulse 100, temperature 98, respiration 18.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2. 6.30 p. m. The President has passed a comfortable day and this evening appears better than for some days past. He has taken a larger amount of nourishment by the mouth and manifested more relish for it. His pulse shows improvement in strength. Pulse 100, temperature 99, respiration 18.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3, 8.30 a. m. The President was somewhat more restless than usual during the early part of the night, but slept better after 1 a. m. this morning. His general condition does not differ materially from the same hour yesterday, except a slight increase in frequency of the pulse. Pulse 104, temp, 98, resp. 18.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4, 8.30 a. m. The physicians have decided to remove the president to Long Branch as soon as his condition and the necessary arrangements will permit. The details of the trip will not be decided on until the time is fixed. This will probably be within a few days. The President is passing a good morning.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5, 6.30 a. m. No material change in the President's condition since morning. The parotid gland abscess continues to improve. The wound remains about the same. The pulse is somewhat less frequent than at noon. Pulse 108, temperature 99, respiration 18.

WASHINGTON, Sept 5, 12.30 p. m. The President's condition has not changed materially since the last bulletin, except some increase in pulse. He has taken with some relish the nourishment, and has had no return of gastric trouble. Pulse 114, temp. 99.5, resp. 18.

Removed to Long Branch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6, 6.30 a. m. The Presidential train left at 6.30 this morning for Long Branch. The President bore the transfer well, with only some acceleration of pulse from the excitement.

GRAYS FERRY, Sept. 6, 10.45 a. m. The President continues to do well. A brief stop was made at Bay View, and the wound successfully dressed. Speed increased to fifty miles an hour. No discomfort was felt by the President. When he was informed that one-half of the journey had been completed he seemed greatly pleased, and said this was decidedly the most interesting day of any since he was shot. Train left Holmesburg at 11.40.

New York Republicans.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A reporter visited a number of Republicans this morning and talked with them about the meeting of the Republican State Committee. Collector Robertson siad: "The proceedings of the committe yesterday were very harmonious, and although the Stalwarts carried out their prearranged programme, and this city was chosen as the place for holding the Convention, it was a bare majority. Though this city was preferred by the Stalwarts, because they are stronger here than anywhere else in the State, I do not think tney will resort to any extreme measure to control the Convention. From the statements expressed yesterday, I am led to believe there will be an earnest effort made on the part of both elements in the party to heal all differences and select a ticket which will receive the support of all the Republicans throughout the State. If this is done we shall certainly carry the State in November."

When asked about the failure of the committee to pass any resolutions of sympathy with the wounded President the collector said: "I think it was merely an oversight. It is to be regretted, certainly, that a body of Republicans representing the State of New York should make such a mistake, but I cannot think it was intentional. Before the committee I spoke of this matter to Mr. Vrooman, and I understood him to say some one present had a set of resolutions prepared which would be presented to the committee. After the formal business of the meeting was over, while I was talking with Mr. Baker about the matter, a motion was made to adjourn, which was carried. Several members were discussing the question among themselves when this motion to adjourn was carried. Had I known no resolutions would be presented, I would have presented a short resolution myself, but almost before I knew it the meeting was declared adjourned. I cannot believe this motion was made to prevent the introduction of such a set of resolutions."

Other gentlemen spoken to regret the omission of Garfield resolutions, and attach no importance to the selection of New York City as the place for holding the convention.

Tammany Talks.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The Tammany Hall Committee to-night adopted anti-monopoly resolutions reported by Committee on Organization. Resolutions were also passed expressing abhorrence at the attempted assassination of President Garfield, tendering him and his family sympathy and expressing hope that his life might be spared for an administration of patriotism and usefulness. John Kelly made an address, in course of which he said that Hancock was not defeated in this city. The rural Democrats were accountable for the enemy's victory. Speaking of the coming State Convention he said, "Let me see the Democratic Convention which shall attempt to ignore the representative of Tammany Hall?"

Alarming Drought in Virginia.

RICHMOND, Sept. 3.—The drought continues throughout the State. Its effects are ruinous. In many counties the corn and tobacco crops are burnt up. Streams have gone dry, stopping mills, and the farmers are put to great labor getting water for stock. The James river is lower than for fifty years. The tobacco crop and fall crops generally may probably be a complete failure. The dust in the roads is fearful. The situation is alarming.

The Way They Do in the Barbarous State.

STEUBENVILLE, Sept. 2.—The woman up at Wheeling Junction was taken to the county infirmary today after we had almost given up getting the county to take charge of her. There is no change in her condition. Your correspondent this afternoon went down to Wellsburg to prevail upon the authorities to take some action in regard to apprehending Haney, or at least extend some aid in the shape of a small reward for his arrest. We found Eugene Tarr, the prosecuting attorney, very much exercised about the matter, and anxious to extend all the aid and make every exertion possible. But he has not the authority. The County Court is where the whole thing rests. That body is not in session now, but if they were it is probable they would not do anything. We talked to one of the Justices of this Court, but he was not disposed to take any action in the matter. He said the railroad Irish had given them a great deal of trouble. They never paid their taxes and the assessors always had trouble there. They had had several of them up for fighting, and it never amounted to anything. It is a disgrace to the county that she does not take some action in the matter, and not let citizens of other States do everything that is done.

Attempted Train Robbery.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—An attempt was made to throw yesterday's eastbound express train from the track near Colfax, for the purpose of robbery. A rail was removed and a portion of the train ditched. No one was hurt and the attempted robbery was unsuccessful.

The following additional has been received regarding the attempt to wreck the overland train. Two engines and one car of the eastbound overland express were thrown from the track about 11:47 last night at Cape Horn Mills, by two rails having been removed by highwaymen. When the engine first left the track Fireman Boyd, upon jumping to the ground, was confronted by a man with a shotgun, who ordered him to stand—not to move or give an alarm. At the same time a man presented a gun at the express messenger, opened the door of the express car and ordered him to surrender. About this time the highwaymen, supposed to be five or six in number, became alrmed and started to run in the bush, leaving their lanterns, masks, 24 cartridges, hercules powder, fuse, axes, sledge, pick and other tools. No one was injured. The train was detained but eight hours.

The Yorktown Centennial.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—Colonel J. E. Peyton, of the Yorktown Centennial Association, has a letter from Marquis De Rochambeau, stating that he and Madame Rochambeau expect to embark at Havre for America on the 24th inst. They will probably be accompanied by staff officers of the French republic, a delegation of persons representing the Minister of Foreign Affairs, a military delegation composed of one general officer and two or three aides de camp of different grades, a naval delegation composed of one Vice Admiral and two or three staff officers, a delegation from the Minister of Fine Arts, composed of several of the best artists and designers of France, and a number of the family of Lafayette who will be invited to join the delegations. The French West India squadron will escort the delegations, which will be under the general charge of Outrey, the French minister at Washington.

A Bad Girl.

TOMBSTONE, Arizona, Sept. 2.—In Ramsay's canon, this city, a thirteen year old girl informed her father that in passing a Mexican wood cutting camp she had been insulted by a Mexican boy. Men went to the camp and compelled the Mexicans, nine in number, to whip the boy with knotted rawhide thongs, resulting in his death a few hours later. The girl subsequently said her story was not true, but told for fun. Retaliation is feared from the Mexican side.

Louisville Industrial Exhibition.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 2.—Louisville opens her ninth industrial exhibition September 6th and closes it October 23d. All the available space has been taken by exhibitors, and the displays will in every respect be superior to those of previous years. Rates have been made with all lines of travel leading to the city for excursions. The art gallery is one of the finest in the country. Governor Blackburn and other prominent people will participate in the opening exercises next Tuesday night.

Made to Marry.

STEUBENVILLE, Sept. 3.—Rufus Wellington gained his liberty in this city to-day by giving Hanna M. Tena the right to go under his name as his better half, and in this case there is no doubt but what she is the better half. Wellington is an engineer, living near Salineville, Columbiana county, and is aged about twenty-three. Miss Tena is a lady of thirty-five years of age, hailing from near Burgettstown, Pa., but she has worked in a boarding house on the South Side for about a year. Youug Wellington came here last February and engaged boarding where Miss Tena worked. He accompanied her home from church several times, and, as he alleges, had no difficulty in seducing her. Soon after he left, but six weeks ago she had him arrested and placed behind the bars. He swore that he would die and rot in jail before he would marry her, but prison fare and confinement changed his mind, and this afternoon 'Squire Spence made them one, the ceremony taking place in the jail.

An Unfortunate Woman.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Brobst, a German woman, who came to this city from Altoona a fews days ago in search of her husband, Joseph Brobst, a laborer employed in a Lawrenceville iron mill, and who boarded on Harrison street, is now lying in the ladies' waiting room at the Union Depot suffering from rheumatism. Upon her arrival in this city with her two children she found that her husband had left his boarding house and gone to another city. Being sick and in destitute circumstances she was forced to accept the hospitality of the depot authorities until aid could be procured. The German Aid Society has been notified of the woman's unfortunate position, and she will probably be provided for to-day.

Horrible Slaughter of General Carr's Troups.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—A Tucson dispatch has advices from Fort Grant to the effect that three couriers have come into Camp Thomas bringing the news—that General Carr and command have all been massacred by White Mountain Indians, thirty-five miles from Camp Apache. One hundred and ten soldiers and seven officers were killed. The officers must be General Carr, Captain Hentig, Lieutenants Carter, Gordon, Stanton, Ornes and Dr. McCreery. The White Mountain Indians' reservation is located about 106 miles north of Wilcox, near the line of New Mexico. The tribe numbers about 1,500 in all. They can muster about 400 warriors. This is the only tribe of Apaches which have not been whipped into subjection. They were moved in 1876 into the San Carlos reservation, but were recalled and returned to their old hunting grounds, where they have been ever since.

French Troops in a Critical Position.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The Times correspondent at Tunis, who personally visited the scene of hostilities, shows that General Correaro was really compelled to retreat because he was surrounded by Arabs and feared that his whole party would be cut off, as they were runing short of ammunition. During the retreat General Correaro was perpetually attacked by swarms of Arabs, who were fortunately under no regular organization or they might have caused serious disaster. The other French column, which is near Zaghouan, is in a critical position, as the Arabs, elated by their success against General Correaro, are surrounding it. Even the road from Biserta, Tunis, is becoming unsafe

The Steamer Teuton Undoubtedly Lost.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A telegran to the Union Mail Steamship Company confirms the account relative to the loss of the steamer Teuton, that the boat containtng thirty women and children, of which it was thought at one time there might be some hope, was swamped. The steamer Danube has returned from the search for survivors from the wreck, having discovered nothing. The corvette Dido is still out in searh. The secretary of the company writes, saying that further inquiries relative to the passengers bound for Knysna have proved beyond a doubt that they were all, forty four in number, on board of the Teuton at the time of her loss and that only three of them were saved.

A Fraudlent Confession.

ERIE, Sept. 5.—James Ward's confession that he committed the outrage on a young girl in this county for which Charles Stafford was in 1876 sentenced to sixteen years in the Western Penitentiary, is now known to be a fraudulent scheme to procure Stafford's pardon. Ward recently married Stafford's sister and the confession has been concocted in Michigan.

Mr. Fowler has used several portable mills of other manufacture, but would recommend the H. & F. Blandy mill for superiority of construction, and for the employment of strictly mechanical principles, embodying, in a word, all the requisites for a first class, substantial mill. The mill and machinery were purchased through Mr. E. B. Blandy, who is a gentlemanly and enterprising salesman, to whom we say, "success."

—One of the devices of the new Czar and his advisers to win the heart of the nation is the publication of a newspaper by the Government, which is to be issued gratuitously every Sunday, three or four copies being sent to each village, and there read aloud to the inhabitants. Politics, history, science and news will, of course, be manufactured at court to train up the popular mind of Russia in the way in which the Czar purposes it to go. There is something in the plan which smacks of the school-master and gives cause to suspect that it originated with M. Pobedonoscheff (the former tutor of the Czar and now his private adviser) who is said to have strong leaning towards Panstavism. The plan is in strict accord with the usual Romanoff-Imperial policy of treating all subjects, Orthdox, Catholics, Panstavists and Nihilists, as if they were children.

This may be all well enough, and may be considered a brilliant idea on the part of M. Pobedonoscheff, but what would prove a more effective method would be the elimination of the innate bloodthirstiness of his average subject by purifying his moral being. This could be accomplished in no easier manner than in the purification of certain edibles. In the United States such difficulties are easily surmounted, and Sechler is one of the noble men created solely for this purpose, and his provisions have never failed to exert a salutary influence.

MR. EDITOR: As my name has been brought before the public as a candidate for the office of Commissioner, I am frequently asked why I do not canvass the county as the other candidates are doing? Please permit me to reply through the columns of your paper:

First, Because it is not in accordance with the principles of economy.

Second, Because I have not the time.

Third, Because, in the event of my nomination and election, I expect to discharge my duty as a public officer in the interest of the tax-payers of Centre county, and not use the office for my own pecuniary benefit. Consequently I cannot afford to spend time and money in electioneering. With this simple explanation I submit my claims for the respectful and favorable consideration of my Republican friends at the ensuing convention.

A Deserving Candidate.

BOALSBURG, Sept. 6th, 1881.

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN: Many names of our Republican citizens are presented in your Columns for the nomination of county Commissioners. Among them I recognize the name of Henry C. Campbell, of Ferguson township. Mr. Campbell is one of the old soldier boys of the "148" in which Centre county has a living pride. He bears three different scars made by rebel bullets—one of them serious which still keeps up its painful recollections. Mr. Campbell is a farmer, highly esteemed in his neighborhood, is a good citizen and a good Republican, who is in every respect qualified to fill the office to which he aspires. Do not let it be said that the Republicans of Centre county have deserted her citizen soldiers. Give them all the offices. "I'm fur 'em."

AN exchange gives the following interesting bit of conversation: Young Mr. Fathersgotomy and Miss Toosilly were talking on the piazza of the United States Hotel, Scratoga, the other night. 'Fond of dancing?' said he. 'Oh, yes, awfully fond.' 'I think it ever so nice, don't you?' 'Yes, dreadfully nice.' 'Do you dance the heel-and-toe polka?' 'Oh, awfully nice, isn't it.' 'Yes, awfully.' 'How's your mother?' 'She's well, how's yours?' 'Oh, she's all right.' 'Beautiful evening, isn't it? Yes, just too lovely for anything.' 'Good evening.' 'Good evening.'

How to Get Sick.

Expose yourself day and night, eat too much without exercise; work too hard without rest; doctor all the time; take all the vile nostrums advertised; and then you will want to know which is answered in three words—take Hop Bitters.

Most farmers probably believe that the great bulk of the constituents of their crops is derived from the soil. This is a very great mistake. Take, for instance, a hay or pasture field. The carbon, hydrogen and oxygen of the plants are derived from the atmosphere, the nitrogen and mineral matter from the soil. This would be equivalent to 92 per cent. of dry hay being derived from the atmosphere and only 8 per cent. from the soil.

—The highest hopes and interest of the race rest on the purity, helth and strength of womanhood. We take pleasure in referring our readers to the remarkable efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in all that class of diseases from which women suffer so much.

Wild Rice.—The Canadian government is said to be trying to cultivate and stimulate the growth of the plant known as "wild rice" in all the inland waters of the Dominion. It grows annually from seed, and induce the presence of wild fowl in the autumn, which visit these rich lakes and extensive beds of food. Sportsmen's clubs are also taking means to extend its growth, as it attracts game of all kinds. In some places, where it grows prolifically, it has been cut before seed time by manufactures, who find its fibre, taken from the under surface of the water to a depth of six or seven feet, to be very valuable. It affords, it is said, the strongest kind of fibre known for making banknote parchment paper.

Best on Record.—I believe Ely's Cream Balm the best preparation for catarrh now on record. My patrons all speak well of it. I have sold one hundred and forty-four bottles in less than five months. I ordered another gross a week ago, and have sold 21 bottles from the second gross. It sells upon its merits. John H. Phelps, druggist, Scranton, Pa. Jan. 28, 1880.

If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening at a distance of 10 inches, your eyes are failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible. If they assist the vision use them. There is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the print is not magnified; it should look natural size but plain.

It is known to all who have been compelled to resort to the use of Spectacles (notwithstanding they may be perfectly fitted to correct the optical defects), that for some cause, not until recently well defined, their use was attended with fatiguing, smarting, and otherwise disagreeable sensations. This is a universal fact of experience, and has been supposed to be entirely beyond remedy. This disagreeable sensation and disturbance of the eye is produced chiefly, perhaps we ought to say entirely, from the fact that ordinary lenses increase the sensation of heat (to which the eye, more than any other organ or part of the body, is sensitive), as also the actinic or chemical properties of the rays of light.

It is well known that these peculiarities of light are identified with certain colors of each ray; and the point of importance, or without using technicalities, is to construct lenses so that these properties of light shall be neutralized; this can be done by introducing a neutralizing tint into their manufacture, the difficulty of which, however, consists in the selection of a color which shall have this effect, and, at the same time, shall not otherwise impair the lenses for purposes of vision. The

Arundel Tinted Lens

Is designed to effect this purpose. The peculiarity of its manufacture consists in the introduction into the glass of a slight Violet Color, in such manner that the high and low numbers of the lens prepared from this glass, although varying in thickness, are of the same delicate tint and of sufficient power to neutralize the heating and actinic power of the rays of light. Read the following:

[From R. S. Mershon, Esq., Zanesville, Ohio.]

"I have put the Arundels through the following tests:—I placed an eight-inch Arundel, and an eight-inch white lens side by side, sharply focused in the strong sunlight, with their foci directed on the bulbs of two thermometers, and the difference was four (4°) degrees in temperture in favor of the ARUNDEL. Again, I placed the same lenses side by side on a piece of sensitised photographic paper, and the white glass discolored the surface quicker than the ARUNDEL. These two tests prove these two points, viz: that the ARUNDEL intercepts the solar heat-rays and the chemical rays also."

And the following from a Centre county man whose letter can be seen at my store:

 * * "I am very much pleased with the glasses. They have been more beneficial to my eyes than all the medicine I ever put in them."*

If you experience any unpleasantness in reading or can't see distinctly, come in and have your eyes tested. I think I have something good for you.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

The President.

The President's condition still continues favorable, and if the present improvement continues for a few days his complete restoration will be considered a certainity. No other complications are anticipated, and the attending surgeons are extremely hopeful.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30, 8.30 a. m. The President slept the greater portion of the night, awakening at intervals and retaining the liquid nourishment given him. His general condition is about the same as yesterday morning. Pulse 102, temperature 98, respiration 18.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30, 6.30 p. m. The President has passed comfortably through the day. He has taken the usual amount of nourishment by the mouth with stimulating enemata at periods. His rise of temperature to-day is a degree less than yesterday. His pulse is less frequent than at noon to-day. The parotid swelling has been discharging more freely, and is continuing to diminish in size. Pulse 109, temperature 99 respiration 18.

The Blood Poisoning.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Late this evening Dr. Boyton said that were it not for the advent of septicæmia in the President's case he would now be convalescent. The stomach trouble of two weeks ago, the glandular complication, the stupor and delirum, rapid pulse, loss of strength etc., were all due to this cause. The wonderful vitality of the President enabled him to overcome all dangers and complications attending the wound prior to the occurrence of blood poisoning. In his case septic taint had underminded the very foundation of life, producing a condition much resembling typhoid fever, attended with stupor, delirum and great prostration. The process of digestion and assimilation had been pretty much arrested, so that although he partook of a sufficient amount of nutritious food he became greatly emaciated and exhausted. The blood besides being vitiated by the absorption of septic matter, had become more and more depraved on account of the failure of the system to assimilate food and transform it into blood. The President has been laboring under the influence of this blood poisoning for some time, and during the past week it became evident that unless a favorable change soon occurred his vital powers would give way.

THE PROBLEM WAS

how to sustain his strength until nature could eliminate the poison. If the blood poison continues to be eliminated, and no more septic matters are absorbed, the President will slowly but surely regain his strength. In his present condition it is not impossible there may be further absorption of septic matters, bringing with it serious complications, but it is confidently hoped such will not be the case. No irreparable mischief has occurred to any of the vital organs, and recovery is more than probable.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31, 6. 30 p. m. The President has passed a better day than for some time past. He has taken liquid food with increased relish, and the usual afternoon rise of temperature did not occur. At the evening dressing the fluid used to wash out the parotid abscess found its way into the mouth which it did not this a. m., showing that an opening into the mouth has spontaneously occurred. The abscess is discharging freely, and the swelling continues to diminish. There is some increase in the discharge from the wound. Pulse 109, temperature 98, respiration 18.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1, 8. 30 a. m. Towards 9 o'clock last night the President had some fever and his pulse ranged from 108 to 116. This was unaccompanied by rigors or sweating, and had subsided by midnight. It did not interfere with his sleep. He had a good night, and symptoms are quite as favorable as at this hour yesterday. Pulse 100, temperature 98, respiration 17.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1, 12.30. p. m. At the dressing of the President's wound this morning the parotid swelling was found to be discharging freely. It looks well, and has materially diminished in size. The wound remains in about the same state. His general condition is not materially different from what it was at this hour yesterday, except that the pulse is somewhat more frequent. Pulse, 108, temperature 98, respiration 18.

Mother and Wife.

A Hiram lady kindly sends the following to the Herald: Mother Garfield, the dear old lady, who has been despairing, is happy again. She has just said: "You see I have got my work. I always put it away when James is worse." She did not lose all heart until Dr. Boyton seemed to have given it up. Then she said: "Why should I hope if Silas has lost his?" There was no violent outburst of grief when he told her the worst) She sat perfectly quiet, folded and unfolded her handkerchief many times in a mechanical way, then she arose and walked feebly from room to room, nothing escaping her lips but the short prayer, "May the Lord help me to be resigned." Sunday afternoon, when a favorable dispatch was read, she expressed the first sentence that told her ambition for her son. She said: "I hope James may live to finish his administration."

She has allowed me to send part of a letter which will give your readers some idea of the writer's wonderful hopefulness and self-control:

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 23.

DEAR MOTHER: Slowly but very steadily James is coming up from this trouble with his stomach. I begin to wonder what can happen next, and whether there is any lower note in the scale for him to touch. But if there is I shall not despair, and you must not. His strong constitution and superabndant vitality, I believe, will carry him through. I begin to see how little I knew of the troubles attending such a wound. It seemed to me that when he got through the first week, and then the second so well, that it must be plain sailing. I can now understand why the surgeons were never ready to say that the dangers were all passed. They would say that they thought they were. * * * It has been a strange, disappointing summer, but if we all come through alive and well we will not complain.

Again, with love to all,

Yours as ever,

LUCRETIA R. GARFIELD.

The Garfield Fund Invested.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29—The Mail of to-day states that by the terms of the subscriptions a "trust fund" has been created and the trust has been accepted by the United States Trust Company in such a form that neither the President nor Mrs. Garfield, nor both of them, can prevent the fulfillment of this trust. The interest on $125,000 of United States registered four per cent. bonds, at least, will be subject to Mrs. Garfield's order so long as she lives. If she refuses to draw the interest it will accumulate for her children, whose wrights in the fund cannot be taken away from them by any power on earth.

Mrs. Garfield's Drive.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—When Mrs. Garfield went out with Mr. Rudolph and C. R. Rockwell, of St. Louis, for a drive to-day, she looked bright and cheerful, notwithstanding the terrible nervous strain which she has borne with such unconquerable courage for eight long weeks. As the carriage passed through the main gateway on Pennsylvania avenue, around which a crowd of people had lingered all day, she responded with a bow and a bright smile to the salutations of the guard and to the greetings of one or two acquaintances who were passing in. Some one standing near the gateway cried: "That is Mrs. Garfiled." All the men in the crowd took off their hats and stood with uncovered heads while the carriage passed.

French Troops Attacked by Arabs.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—With reference to the report from Tunis of an engagement between the French troops near Hammamet and Arabs, an official telegram says that Col. Correard, on raising camp at Erbain on Friday last to march to Hammamet was attacked by a body of 12,000 mounted Arabs. The French loss was trifling, but the Arabs left fifteen dead and a number of wounded on the field. Col. Correard has advanced until he can ascertain the disposition of the people of Hammamet. It is desirable to occupy that district, as it will always afford facilities for the disembarkation of troops.

Discord in Egypt.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 30.—Riaz Pasha has dismissed the Minister of Public Works. The dismissal of the Minister of Foreign Affairs is expected daily. The new Minister of War, who is unpopular with the troops, is expected to attempt their disbandonment. It is believed the visit of Sir Louis Malet to Constantinople is to arrange for a joint occupation of Egypt by England, France and Turkey pending the disbandment of the troops.

Hurricane at Charleston.

CHARLESTON, S. C. August 29—Throughout yesterday and last night the easterly gale blew with great force, and the scene within the harbor from noon until midnight, as the heavy sea broke against the Battery sea wall, throwing vast sheets of sprav forty feet high over the city's water front, was grand. Of the few spectators who braved the force of the hurricane after nightfall, one was Thos. C. Lesesne, aged 23, a son of Chanceller Lesesne. He was swept away from the Battery sea wall by the wind into the harbor. Being a fine swimmer, he succeeded in keeping afloat long enough to grasp a rope thrown to him by his companions, but at the critical moment the rope broke and he disappeared in the darkness. His body has not been recovered. Three other deaths resulting from the gale, those of two negro men and a negro woman, have been reported. The damage to property in the eastern part of the city is widespread but not of a very serious character, consisting mainly of the destruction of tin roofs, chimneys, fencing, signs, and trees, and the tearing up of the planking of the wharves. The damage is roughly estimated at $100,000. At Sullivan's Island, the seaside suburb of Charleston, several cottages were swept away, and much other damage was done, amounting in all to about $40,000; but no lives were lost, so far as is known. The shipping in port had ample time to prepare for the gale, and sustained no damage. The steamships City of Atlanta, for New York, and Calvert, for Baltimore, which were to have sailed yesterday, remained here. The steamship G. W. Clyde arrived from New York this afternoon, having encountered the hurricane off Cape Fear without damage. The steamships Cleopatra, from Baltimore, and Equator, from Philadelphia, are off the bar.

The Lycoming Frauds.

WILLIAMSPORT, Aug. 31.—The warfare that was made on the Commissioners of this county with such violence a short time ago has entirely ceased, and the indications are that there will be no prosecutions if the Democrats can prevent it. It will be remembered that the charges of corruption first came from Democratic source, when the organ of the party took it up and "pitched into" the Board at a terrible rate, demanding their immediate arrest. The Democratic County Convention assembled in the meantime, and the leaders of the party suddenly became impressed with the idea that it would result injuriously to the party if this warfare was continued on the Commissioners, and they set about "hushing the matter up." Those who were clamoring for prosecution on the ground of reform, including the editor of the organ, were commanded to cease the warfare, because, they were told, it would injure the party. Threats were made that if they did not obey it might interfere seriously with future aspirations for office, and as the word "office" is allpowerful with the Democrats of this county, the order was obeyed, the paper ceased to denounce the thieving Commissioners, and not a word has been said for nearly a week.

SIGNIFICANT SILENCE OF THE DEMOCRACY.

The county convention was held in the meantime, but no reference was made to the stealing in the Commissioners' office, and not a resolution condemnatory of it was passed. Every Democrat was silent on the subject. This course was taken for the close perpetuation of Democratic ring rule in Lycoming. It was shown to the satisfaction of everybody that the Commissioners had robbed the county and carried on a petty system of corruption that richly merited severe punishment. But when the Democratic leaders had spiked the guns of their organ, "sat down on" all those who were clamoring for reform and enforced quiteness, the Republican Convention met and passed strong resolutions arraigning the Democratic party as being responsible for the corrupt administration of the public affairs of the county, and with desiring to continue the corrupt practices existing in the Commissioners' office by nominating the Clerk of the Board for County Treasurer.

INVOKING THE AID OF THE COURTS.

The resolutions then go further and ask the President Judge of the courts to submit the charges of corruption made by Democrats to the Grand Jury at the next session of the Criminal Court. As might have been expected, this bold movement of the Republicans to force the fighting struck terror into the camp of the Democratic ring managers, and they are busy devising some scheme to prevent the matter going before the Grand Jury. Judge Cummin is an honest and fair-minded judge, a hater of corruption and crime, and will not lay a straw in the way of the wheels of justic e The ring managers well knew that the Commissioners and Frothonotary could not stand a judicial investigation for an hour, and they are troubled to know how to prevent the matter getting into the hands of the Court. As matters now stand, the people are amazed at the trickery practiced and likely to elect a Republican Board of Commissioners in order to break up the corruption in that office. Democrats will unite with the Republicans to bring this about, for it must be said to their credit that there is a large Democratic element here that is heartily sick and tired of iron ring rule.

The Milwaukee Murder.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 1—Herman Hilden, the young man who shot Paul Kimmer and his mother at Milwaukee last night, has been a bartender at the Planters' House saloon in this city for years past, and his father, Sebastion Hilden, is a waiter at the Monkey's saloon and restraurant. The latter says the woman shot at Milwaukee was his wife, but for years past she has behaved very badly and caused him much troubl. A few years ago Hilden was a wealthy wool spinner in Krappinger Germany, with a wife and four children. The wife was a handsome woman, fond of flattery, and much given to flirtation with other men. On one occasion, while Hilden was absent from home, his wife packed up her personal effects, took his children and all the money she could obtain, and sailed for America. Hilden followed as soon after as possible, and found his wife and children in Milwaukee. They lived together again, and he opened a saloon. Some time after this Mrs. Hilden got acquainted with Paul Kimmer, a school teacher in the St. Joseph Catholic school, and their intercourse became a public scandal, resulting in his dismissal from the school. This affair broke Hilden up and his wife then came to St. Louis, bringing two of her children with her, Herman being one of them. Kimmer soon followed with his three daughters, and the whole party organized a musical troupe and performed at what was known as Gregory's Winter Garden.

Herman became disgusted with the conduct of his mother and Kimmer and left the party. On concluding their engagement at Gregory's the Kimmers and Mrs. Hilden went back to Milwaukee. The latter then obtained a divorce from her husband and took up regularly with Kimmer. The son, Herman, always sided with his father in his troubles, and was greatly ashamed and worried at the conduct of his mother and Kimmer. This preyed upon his mind until he seems to have been driven to desperation, and on Monday night last left the city. Whether he premeditated the killing of Kimmer is not known, as he said nothing about the matter to any one, nor did he tell his father or friends that he was going to Milwaukee.

The New Haven Tragedy.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Aug. 30—Blanche Douglass, implicated in the Cramer mystery, was removed this evening from Sheriff Peck's house to the jail. H. C. Allen has made a deposition that he saw Jennie Cramer and James Malley leave Redcliff's building about a quarter of eight on Friday evening. At the jail to day he positively identified James Malley. This testimony it is claimed demolishes the Malleys alike.

Seeking a Short Shrift.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Guiteau continues as devilish as ever. He has written a letter to the District Attorney in which he expresses his increased regret that he was not able to kill the President while in church, and thus secure his death on the instant. He says that he is sorry that he suffers so much and a good deal more sorry that he is not dead.

Bold Speech by a Bishop.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—The Bishop of Tennessee, preaching at Seaford on Sunday, referred to the spirit abroad in the world to put down all authority. The dying President was a Christian, who before the world dared to take sin by the throat. He was a man who might be killed, but not seduced from the right.

Killing his Companion.

CONOES, Aug. 30.—This afternoon Marcus Limberk, Edward Wells, and Joseph Eyott of this city were on a squirrel hunt. When about two miles above the city, on the Mohawk River each saw a squirrel at the same time. Limberk raised his gun, which was accidentally discharged, killing Wells almost instantly.

The Drought in Canada.

TORONTO, Sept. 1.—Dispatches from all parts of the Province of Ontario respecting the weather and crops show that unusually protracted drought exists almost everywhere causing much loss and great inconvenience. The pastures have suffered, the root crops are more or less endangered and dairy products have diminished. In the western counties particularly Indian corn, fruit and root crops suffer severely. The pastures are dried up and burnt brown. The earth is baked and the streams and wells are either entirely dry or fast drying up. The farmers are in many instances obliged to drive their cattle for miles to be watered, or to bring their supply in barrels a long distance. Bush fires are also widely prevalent and doing much damage.

Drought in Blair County.

ALTOONA, Sept. 1.— The drought in this vicinity has been very severe. Never in the history of the county have we had such dry weather. There has been no rain for nearly two months. The crops are all dried up, the corn is a complete failure. The city have the use of the hydrants six hours out of twenty-four. The springs and wells are completely dried up. The water is only about five feet in the receiving reservoir. The Railroad company had to shut down their lower shops on account of the scarcity of water. They now carry in large oil tanks the water necessary to run their large works Wells that have never been dry before are completely exhausted. The dust is fearful.

Self Murder.

SMITHVILLE, O., Sept. 1.—David Fetter, a young man aged 27, and of unsound mind, residing about two miles south of this place, committed suicide some time during last night by hanging. He was found about half past 8 this morning by his mother, hanging to the bed post. He used a small rope, tying it around the post about a foot and a-half from the floor, and throwing himself forward strangling to death. No other cause for the act is known except mental derangement.

Railroad Smash up in Italy.

NICE, Aug. 30—A railway train bound for this place has been thrown from the track between Frejus and Agay by the malicious removal of rails. The engine and four goods-wagons fell upon the rocks on the seashore. The engine driver and stoker were killed and nine persons injured, including two ladies.

Their Best Hold.

"John White," said Judge Murray to a prisoner, who had the remnants of a big drunk still hanging about him, "no man who drinks whiskey can hope to become great. No man who falls down in a drunken stupor on a vacant lot can expect the world to revere his memory or erect monuments over his deeds."

"But I had trouble your honor."

"Wife run away?"

"Oh, no, sir; I only wish she had! I was working over on the boulevard yesterday when I got word that a strange woman was at my house claiming that she was one of my deserted wives from Canada."

"Yes."

"And it wasn't twenty minutes after before the wife I left in Connecticut seven years ago went past in the direction of my house."

"Yes."

"Well, I could either drown myself or get drunk, and I thought it best to get drunk. So I took a drink for each one, and the last I remember I was trying to climb a lamp-post for apples."

"How is it about these wives?"

"Well, I was divorced from the two, and I've got the papers to show for it, but I don't care about going home for a few days yet. My last wife has a tongue like a file and a temper like a jack-knife."

"Shall I send you up?"

"If you please, give me thirty days, and by that time the three will have settled all disputes over me."

"Well, I'll make it thirty."

"Thanks. As I told you before, I've got my divorces all O. K., but them two women have come here with their claws sharpened for business, and I'll save my complexion by retiring from the arena for a few days. I've pulled hair with 'em, and I know their best hold."

Louisville Pastimes.

Two young men sought to finish the operation which nature had commenced, and make fools of themselves, yesterday afternoon at the Novelty five-cent lunch house on Green street. Ever since Henry Vail won the $5 off the man who thought he could eat six watermellons, he has been yearning to start some similar undertaking and win some more money. An opportunity presented itself yesterday afternoon, which was taken advantage of. A young man named Charlie Walters, who loafs around the lunch-house a good deal, claimed that he could put away more apple pies than any other man in town, and offered to back his assertion by staking $5. The bet was accepted and the following arrangement made: Each man was to eat as many green apple pies, made with a double crust, as he could in 35 minutes, without drinking any water, the one who ate the most to be declared the victor. Yesterday afternoon Vail appeared at the lunch-house accompanied by a small, thin young man, who looked as if he had been living on sweetened milk for about two weeks. Walters also put in appearance, and the stuffing process commenced. Neither of them had eaten any food during the day, and were in full trim to make hogs of themselves. Twelve pies were placed before each of them to start on, and they commenced. It was plainly apparent from the first that Vail's man had the bulge on his opponent, and he kept it to the finish. The twelve pies were put away in less than twenty minutes and six more were placed before each of them. Walters' inclination were all right, but his capacity expired after eating his fifteenth pie, and he yielded up his money without a murmur. The other man ate seventeen pies and only stopped when the supply gave out. The name of young Vail's champion could not be learned. He was proof against entreaties, and is evidently being groomed as the "unknown" champion.—Courier Journal.

Is It Possible

that a remedy made of such common, simple plants as hops, buchu, mandrake, dandelion &c., make so many and such marvelous and wonderful cures as Hop Bitters do? It must be, for when old and young, rich and poor, pastor and doctor, lawyer and editor, all testify to having been cured by them, we must believe and doubt no longer. See other column.

Centre Baptist Sunday-School Association.

The sixteenth annual convention of the Centre Baptist Sunday-School Association convened in the Baptist church, at Unionville, on Tuesday morning last, and closed its labors yesterday. A very full attendance participated during every session, and the debates were spirited and ably conducted. We are indebted to Mr. F. P. Green, of this place, for a report of the proceedings, which will be found below.

The morning session was opened at 10.30 with devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. H. Colclesser, after which reports from the different Sabbath-schools in the district were read. The morning session adjourned at 12 o'cock.

The convention was called to order at 2 o'clock p. m. A committee was appointed to nominate officers for the association, who after being out some time returned and made the following nominations, all of whom were elected by acclamation: President, Rev. Edward B. Morris, of Milesburg; Vice President, Richard Hudson, of Saltillo; Recording Secretary, Robert McDivit, of Huntingdon; Corresponding Secretary, T. McFarlane, of Hollidaysburg; Treasurer, S. E. Henry, of Huntingdon; Executive Committee, Dr. B. Miles, Huntingdon, Rev. James Lightner, Shirleysburg, Rev. H. F. King, Hollidaysburg, B. F. Hinchman, Johnstown, and D. M. Shontz, Philipsburg.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Mr. W. B. Leas. The regular order of business was then resumed, when a motion was made and adopted inviting brethren of all evangelical churches to a seat among them.

The subject, "Are annual reorganizations necessary?" was opened by Mr. F. H. Senft, of Saltillo, and further discussed by Revs. Craft, King, Henshey and McVitty.

"By what means can the heart and conscience of the pupil be reached?" was introduced by Rev. H. F. King, of Hollidaysburg, who was followed by Messrs. Henshey, Deckard, Stewart, Peters, Hare and the Rev. Ray.

At this point Rev. Ray favored the audience with a solo, which was excellently delivered and highly appreciated.

"Does the use of tobacco weaken a teacher's power for good?" was ably and enthusiastically discussed by Messrs. McDivit, Leas, Ridge, Colclesser, Lovel, Craft, Henshey, Deckard, Evans, Hudson and Morris, after which the afternoon session adjourned.

The evening session was called to order at 7:45, and devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. R. Deckard.

"Is all being done that should be in our schools to promote the better observance of the Christian Sabbath?" was participated in by Rev. H. Colclesser and Rev. David Williams.

Music was next furnished by the choir, after which an able and interesting essay was read by the Rev. George Craft, of Huntingdon, on the subject, "The teacher's preparation of himself," which was an excellent production and well received by the large audience. After singing and benediction the evening session was brought to a close.

Wednesday morning's session commenced at 8 o'clock, and after the usual devotional exercises the subject 'What can be done to bring the children of our schools to attend the preaching of the word?" was introduced by Rev. Forges, of Bell's Mills, who was followed in the same subject by Dr. Bell, Rev. Williams, and brothers Lane, King, Leas, Ray and Craft.

The report of the treasurer was then heard, which was referred to a committee consisting of R. L. Shirk, K. A. Lovell and D. F. Boring. While the committee was out Rev. C. W. Ray favored the convention with another delightful solo.

The business of the convention having been completed, a motion was adopted the effect of which was that when we adjourn it be to meet the day before and at the same place as the Baptist Association. After benediction the convention adjourned.

Fashion Notes.

Lace and muslin fichus grow larger and larger.

The blouse is the favorite waist for yachting costumes.

It is the height of fashion to hang a piece of old faded tapestry on the wall.

Showy colors in showy contrasts appear in the composition of fashionable seaside suits.

Fantastic figures are embroidered in bright colors on artistic and fancy lawn tennis costumes.

White and gold braid trim yachting suits of blue, gray, or cream white flannel serge beautifully.

Cretonne fans in Trianon designs match parasols and suits of printed sateen, cambric, and foulard.

Red corsages, red hats, and red fans and parasols are adopted by many women of gay tastes at watering places.

The fashionable artificial flowers are jonquils, roses, peonies, oxeye daisies, white lilace, and sunflowers of various sizes.

Yachting suits of dark or porcelain blue, gray or green flannel serge are made bright and gay with Turkey red sashes and trimmings.

Mull and batiste dresses in pale tints of color, trimmed with imitation Valenciennes and Flemish point and Vermicelli laces, make lovely afternoon and evening watering-place toilet.

Artistic parasols have sprays of eglantine, daisies, golden rod, straggling insects, and sometimes birds painted as if falling, or flying, au naturel, over the gores on the outside, sometimes encroaching on the lace border, or fringe, while the linings shows shaded effects in full, delicate tints of blue, green, rose, cream, pearl, and pure white.

Relief From Consumption.

A NEW REMEDY SUGGESTED BY A MINNESOTA PHYSICIAN.

In a letter from Minneapolis, Minn., to the Chicago Tribune, in which he declares that no cough mixture can reach the lung, Dr. R. D'Unger says:—

I need not describe the symptoms of consumption, as they are so well known and so frequently beheld that even the most unintelligent can diagnose the disease form the hectic spots in the cheeks the terrible, exhausting cough, the purulent expectoration, and wasting body; nor will I here put down the thousand and one opinions already printed as to its causation. It will be enough to say that when it is once seated, strenuous efforts to check its progress must be made. Nature herself always tries to do this, and, with slight aid she usually succeeds. Be hopeful, then, ye afflicted ones.

Let us compare life to a burning lamp. If we supply oil as rapidly as the flame consumes it, the wick remains unburnt, and the lamp throwns out its given light; but if we fail to supply the oil needed to produce flame it is a foregone conclusion; the wick becomes consumed, the light grows dim, flickers, and finally goes out altogether. In other words, the light dies because there is too much oxygen and not enough carbon. So it is with a consumptive's life. The disease he suffers from is a wasting one, and internal fever which consumes the carbon in his blood more rapidly than the food he eats can supply it. If carbon was furnished as fast as the disease exhausted it, the body would not waste; if it was put into the blood in excess of what the disease required, there would be an increase in the strength and bulk of the body, instead of a decrease. Like the lamp, the supply of oil in the body must be equivalent to the demand or in excess of it. If this be not so, the life, like the wick, will be consumed.

Some months ago the little daughter (aged fourteen) of a trunk-maker in this city, one Mr. Garden—I am permitted to use his name—was pronounced a hopeless consumptive; and to have seen her at that time one would have supposed there was good ground for the decision, as she was a mere skeleton, had a terrible cough, expectorated over half a pint a day of greenish, blood-streaked, tuberculous matter, and was so exceedingly nervous that she could scarcely sleep at all night or day. She had been doctored a long while with cough and consumptive specifics, and one or two physicians had tried their skill on her, but without avail, her life was gradually drawing to its close. Meeting her father—who was almost heart-broken at the thought of soon losing her—one day, I gave him this prescription:

One half pound finely cut up beefsteak (fresh); one drachm pulverized charcoal; four ounces of pulverized sugar; four ounces rye whiskey; one pint of boiling water. Mix all together, let it stand in a cool place over night, and give from one to two teaspoonfuls liquid and meat before each meal.

This was tried, and in four or five weeks this little girl was so rosy and healthy, free from all cough and other symptoms of disease, that it was considered almost a miracle in the neighborhood in which she lived.

What caused this great change? Simply the supplying of her system with more carbon than the disease could exhaust, thereby giving nature the upper hand in the conflict. I have used this preparation very frequently, and have never found it act otherwise than beneficial, The dose should be small at first, until the stomach becomes used to it, and then gradually increased.

Cramming in Schools.

The effect of the forcing process, that now passes for education, upon the health of the pupils, has been carefully investigated by the board of education of Cleveland, a city whose schools rank with the very best in the country. It appeared from the reports that during the last school year 166 pupils in the high schools dropped out without completing their course. The committee of statistics undertook an investigation of the reason for this. Of the 136 cases that were inquired into, 85 were taken out on account of ill health. Seventy-five per cent. of the girls who dropped out without completing their course were withdrawn for this reason, and 35 per cent. of the boys. The report, in all its bearings, shows that the girls suffer more from the strain of the school course than the boys. The reason given that in the construction of school buildings, in hours and methods of study, and in making up the course, it is assumed that girls can endure as severe and continuous a strength as boys, although physicians and wise parents know that special consideration should be paid to the physiological condition of the girls at the age when they are passing through the high schools. Out of the 96 girls who left school, 79 started in with good health. Of this number only 35 per cent. retained good health while in school, while 56 per cent. of the boys were unaffected. That is to say, 52 per cent. of the girls and 19 per cent. of the boys had their health materially impaired by the incomplete course of study in the high schools. Still more striking facts are adduced by the Leader of that city, in the cases or 32 young women graduates of the high school. Of these 32, who completed the full course, 29 started in with good health, which only five of them kept. These figures, and more telling the same story, cause the Leader to ask the pertinent question, 'whether the education or the health of the girls is to be first considered, or whether it is not possible to educate without sacrificing health?' The question of a remedy cannot be more than touched upon in a paragraph; but it may be said, in a word, that even the best of our public schools do not yet make enough account of these things in the education of girls. Bad air, lack of out-door exercise, the climbing of stairs, social and other excitements at home, and too many studies. If the bodily health can be maintained at a high standard, the brain will do all that is commonly required of it. The pressure is no doubt too high, but a large proportion of our girls break down through a lack of attention to the plainest and simplest conditions of health on the part of parents and school authorities.

How to Avoid Drowning.

Dr. Henry MacCormac, of Belfast, Ireland, writes that it is not at all necessary or inevitable that a person knowing nothing of the art of swimming should be drowned if he depends simply and entirely on the powers for self-preservation with which nature has endowed him. The pitch of the doctor's remarks is contained in the following paragraph: "When one of the inferior animals takes the water, falls, or is thrown in, it instantly begins to walk as it does when out of the water. But when a man who cannot "swim" falls into the water he makes a few spasmodic struggles, throws up his arms, and drowns. The brute, on the other hand, treds water, remains on the surface, and is virtually insubmergeable. In order, then, to escape drowning it is only necessary to do as the brute does, and that is to tread or walk the water. The brute has no advantage in regard of his relative weight, in respect of the water, over man; and yet the man perishes while the brute lives. Nevertheless, any man, any woman, any child, who can walk on the land may also walk in the water just as readily as the animal does, and that without any prior instructions or drilling whatever. Throw a dog into the water, and he treads or walks the water instantly, and there is no imaginable reason why a human being under like circumstances should not do as the dog does. The brute, indeed, walks in the water instinctively, whereas man has to be told."

Two Apple Games.

There are two old games in which the apple plays important parts. One of the games which we call "Snap-apple," originated in Greece over two thousand years ago. In Rome the boys called the same game "Quaintain." If any young company would like to play snap-apple, let them take a stick about one foot long, and on one end of the stick tie a candle so that the wick shall point upward. On the other end of the stick fasten a good sized apple, then by means of a string, suspend the stick so that it shall hang, horizontally, three or four feet from the floor, according to the heighth of the players. The other end of the string may be fastened to the chandelier, or a hook in the ceiling of the room. Having the apple ready, light the candle and tie the hands of the players. The game is for a player to catch at the apple, which he can do with his mouth only. The player is kept jumping away constantly to avoid the candle, and very often gets a thump in the mouth from the apple.

It is better that small children shouldn't play snap-apple, as it is not altogether free from danger.

The other apple game may be played by any one, and there is a great deal of fun in it. Get a large deep tub, fill it withwater and throw in a few apples. Tie the hands of the players behind them and let them catch the floating apples in their mouths. They are more likely to get a ducking than to catch an apple.

'How many comets did you say there were?' inquired the Judge of the prisoner, who had been locked up over night for deranging the symmetry of a neighbor's features during an astronomical controversy. 'Three av it please yer honor.' The Court smiled incredulously, upon observing which, Pat added, I after telling you the trouth; Mickey Farrel, he saw one; Mrs. Binnes, she saw another, an' it was myself that saw the third.

Puffs of mull and tulle illusion in the neck bid fair to take the place of pleatings and ruches.

Brave Joe.

Some of our readers may be interested in reading the following account of the marvelous tenacity of life shown by a fox terrier under the following circumstances: One day the dog was with my keeper in a wood. He made a bolt after a rabbit which crossed the shooting path, and went into the covert after him. The keeper called and whistled, but Joe, usually the most obedient of dogs, answered not, nor could he be found anywhere. For some days and nights search was made for poor Joe, for he was a great favorite. The search, however, was in vain, and Joe was given up as lost. My keeper had no doubt that the dog had got into a hole after the rabbit, and had by digging buried himself, and so perished. Three days afterward some workmen, engaged in the next wood heard a dog barking as if in distress. I heard the cries of the animal myself, and one of the men (the keeper's son) went in the direction of the sounds to see what was the matter. The sound led him to a large rabbit run, and then the barking ceased. By putting his head to the ground he could distinctly hear the animal breathing. He ran for a "pick," and in a short time dug out poor old Joe, worn to a skeleton his eyes choked with earth and he was unable to stand. The dog had dug himself toward an outlet and would have dug himself out, but was stopped by a root of a tree across the hole. The poor animal licked the man's hand to show his gratitude at being released, but had no strength to do more. He was taken to the keeper's house and fed sparingly at first. He soon recovered, and is now brisk and well as ever. Joe was thirteen days and thirteen nights underground, and during that time could not have had a drop of water to drink, or anything to eat, unless he devoured a rabbit, which is not likely.—London Field.

Frontier Life.

Many of the first settlers of Illinois were rude in speech and rough in manner. Money was scarce with them and service was paid for in produce. Governor B— used to illustrate these incidents of frontier life by the following anecdote:

One day there came into his office a young man accompanied by a young woman.

'Be you the 'Squire asked the manly youth.

'Yes, sir.'

'Can you tie the knot for us right away?'

'Yes, sir.'

'How much do you charge?'

'One dollar is the legal fee, sir.'

'Will you take your fee in beeswax?'

'Yes, if you can't pay cash.'

'Well, go ahead and tie the knot, I'll bring in the wax.'

'No,' said the 'Squire, thinking there was a good chance for a little fun; 'bring in the bees wax first, and then I'll marry you.'

Reluctantly the youth went out to where was hitched the horse, upon which, Darby and Juan fashion, they had ridden, and brought the wax in a sack. On being weighed, its value was found to be only sixty cents.

'Wall,' said the anxious groom, tie the knot and I'll fetch more wax next week.'

'No, sir, I dont trust; that is against the rules of this office.'

Slowly the disappointed youth turned to go out, saying, 'Come Sall, let's go.

'I say, mister,' answered Sall' with a woman's wit, 'can't you marry us as far as the wax will go.'

'Yes, I can and will,' replied the 'Squire laughing; and he did.

The Men Who Succeed.

The great difference among men, of all callings, is energy of character or the want of it. Given the same amount of learning and integrity, and the same opportunities, and energy will make one man a conqueror. The want of it will see the other a failure. Dead-beats are all men without force. They had as good a chance as any of their companions. Others went ahead and carried off the prizes, while they were lying by the way-side dispirited and despondent. It takes nerve, vim, perseverance, patient continuance in well-doing, to win a great prize. And the young man who goes into a profession without this pluck and force will not earn salt to his porridge. He will drag along through life with the help of friends, getting some credit with them for being a wellmeaning man, in delicate health and unlucky. The real trouble is he lacks energy. This is just as true of the minister as of the lawyer or physician. Piety is not enough. All the Greek and Hebrew in the world will not qualify a man for usefulness in the ministry. It wants push, stamina, vigor, courage, resolution, will, determination—in one word, energy. If the youth knows a little Greek, he knows what en ergos means, and without it Dr. Parr's knowledge of Greek will not help him to usefulness or success in the pulpit.—New York Observer.

"When we are old, Claude, we shall still be lovers," she said, gazing into his eyes with the rapture of a gifted woman who writes poetry for the Boston papers. "The warm hues of our youthful affection shall never fade, but only grow brighter as we draw nearer to the sunset; we shall still sit out in the hush of the summer eves and feed our souls on the poetry of the stars!" "Well, hardly," answered Claude, "unless you want me to remain up till daybreak basting your old back with arnica."

The number of vertebrated animals is estimated at 20,000.

A PROMISING youth recently surprised his father by asking: 'Father, do you like mother?' 'Why yes, of course.' 'And she likes you?' 'Of couase she does.' 'Did she ever say so?' 'Many a time, my son.' 'Did she marry you because she loved you?' 'Certainly she did.' The boy scrutinized his parent, and, after a long pause, asked, 'Well, was she as near sighted then as she is now?'

Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose that he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, indigestion, etc. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night, after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Internal, External and Itching Piles yield at once on the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain upon the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price, 50 cents. Ask your druggist for it, and when you cannot obtain it of him, we will send it, prepaid, on receipt of price. Address, The Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by F. Potts Green. 21-17t

THE REPUBLICAN IS ALWAYS FULL OF NEWS and other information of interest and value to the people of Centre and neighboring counties.

Bellefonte Republican.

EDWARD T. TUTEN, - - Editor.

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—You are allowed to shoot squirrels now, so blaze away.

—The car works management have increased the average of new cars turned out to six cars daily.

—The colored bush meeting in Valentines' grove has proven quite successful, and it will continue several days.

—It is said another Uncle Tom troup is heading this way. But don't get impatient, children, you will all get a chance to see it, we guess.

—There will be five changes of the moon this month, which is the only month in the calendar that will furnish such a lunary spectacle this year.

—Arrangements for the reunion of the Veteran Club of Centre county are progressing, and nothing is being left undone that will in any way add to the comfort or enjoyment of those who attend.

—During the month of August Berwind White & Co. were compelled to suspend operations nearly one half the time because of the inability of the railroad company to furnish them with sufficient cars with which to transport coal.

—On Friday a petition was sent in from Snow Shoe, signed by a number of property holders, praying the court that it may be incorporated into a borough. It will be presented at November term, and the request will most likely be granted.

—Bellefonte really had a small shower Sunday evening. For a whole day the clouds had been threatening rain. but they seemed to compromise with the drought after pouring out a bucketful of water, and the sky became as clear as crystal.

—One of the finest cars ever made in Altoona was recently turned out of that city for the use of General Manager Frank Thompson, of the Pennsylvania railroad. The curtains alone are said to have cost $160 each, and the car is elaborately decorated and expensively finished.

—It is said that nearly two thousand people attended the Union Sunday-school picnic held in Winkelbleck's grove, near Millheim, on Saturday last. Addresses were made by Revs. Bright, Tomlinson, Widemyer and Seigel, and a general good time was had by all who attended.

—Chief Police Montgomery and a United States detective named Martin visited Clearfield on Friday last and arrested a man named Moyer for violating certain liquor laws. The three returned to Bellefonte in the evening, and on the late train at night the detective and Boyer left for Williamsport, where the latter will answer before the United States court.

—The Harrisburg, Lancaster, York and in fact all the eastern papers are making it very warm for speculative life insurance men, and unless the indications are very deceiving the insurance men will have to bite the dust. We believe that unless the Centre county papers follow in their wake and nip this rapidly-growing evil in the bud, we will be in a short time fully as badly cursed as either Snyder, Dauphin or Lebanon counties.

—Among the distinguished men at Cresson Springs are President Roberts of the Pennsylvania railroad, and A. K. McClure, of the Philadelphia Times. Four hundred guests were turned away from the Mountain House in two weeks' time on account of lack of room for entertainment, and the authorities are already talking of building an addition to the mammoth hotel, which is now capable of entertaining about seven hundred people.

—During our visit to Bedford Springs last week we were no little pleased to gaze upon the smiling physiognomy of our old jocular friend, Alex. Agnew, or "Bully," as he is better known by his friends hereabouts. Many of our citizens will be glad to learn that since his departure from Bellefonte "Bully" has been a "favored son of Providence," as in his new, (or rather old) home he is meeting with the most encouraging success. The Messrs. Miller Brothers, probably the most extensive cigar manufacturers in Central Pennsylvania, whose industry furnishes employment for more than a score of men, and a great deal of whose production is consumed in Centre county, are the employers of our ex-citizen, and in whose large, well-arranged establishment he serves as "managing editor." His host of friends in Bellefonte wish him abundant success in his present field of labor.

"Tax Payer" Again.

In last week's Watchman "Taxpayer" again consumes nearly half a column in a feeble, flimsy effort to persuade us that we are mistaken in our statement concerning the doings of Mr. Harris as treasurer of the school fund. Just who this silly, shatter-brained "Taxpayer" is, to us is a profound mystery, but the general, shallow tone of the letter sounds very much like the get-up of a certain third-class lawyer and politician, whose lump of self-esteem is hidden by massive, flowing ringlets of jet, and whose sensitive feelings were so outraged recently that rather than occupy a seat in the school board with a respectable colored man resigned in angered haste under the thin pretext that his "church demanded it."

As we said before, we do not care to so wantonly waste our time and space by arguing this matter with so flippant a creature as this bullet-headed "Taxpayer," so we will say once for all that our statement was correct in every particular, and the efforts of this political or legal nondescript to persuade the people to the contrary are calculated to fill a double purpose—to deceive the people and gain a little cheap local notoriety for the writer. We repeat what we have already stated, that Mr. Harper, during his term of office as treasurer of the school fund, never paid one cent of the school indebtedness nor refunded a single dollar. Mr. Hoffer never refunded a cent, but unlike Harper, during his twelve months of service as treasurer of the fund did manage to pay about four hundred dollars. Now, we charge that if either Mr. Harper or Mr. Hoffer ever represented otherwise to anybody they stated a willful falsehood, and we challenge either of them to produce any record of the School Board that will sustain their assumed false positions. This is an open and broad allegation, but we are driven to it by their imaginative (we believe) champion, and if they have any desire to vindicate themselves they will do so now in an honorable manner. If they can prove to us satisfactorly that we are wrong in this matter, we will willingly make the proper apology, but we despise their efforts at making political capital in such a mean, underhanded manner. This is all we have to say on this subject, but will add that if these gentlemen are wise they will secure a champion possessed of a deeper caliber than "Taxpayer."

Send in the News.

We ask our friends from a distance to send us news. Whatever happens of local interest in your neighborhood, we ask as a favor to us that you send it in. Do not hesitate because you think it of insufficient interest. We are to act as judge, and if we find it interests nobody we assure you it will not be published. But send it nevertheless, and we will find someone who is looking for just that kind of news Then, again, do not hesitate because you feel you are unable to express it in exactly the right language. This is a mistake. You can do as well, probably, as any one of your neighbors, and any errors we may notice shall be cheerfully rectified. For this purpose we occupy the position we do,and draw a regular salary. Fully nine-tenths of the communications sent to a newspaper office have to be carefully revised by someone who is capable of doing so, and if yours is subject to the same scrutiny and possible changes you have the consolation that it is a rule of the office and that you are no worse than the eight others who have just preceded you. We ask you as a favor to send it in, and if you cannot spell a single word in the English language correctly we give you the assurance that it will be cheerfully corrected and thankfully received. Send in the news.

—Travel on the Pennsylvania railroad is said to be heavier just now than at any other time during the company's existence. Every passenger car they own that is fit to be used at all is brought into requisition for the transportation of travelers, and it is said an order has been given out for the building of several hundred new coaches of an improved pattern. More coaches are being used regularly on the Bald Eagle valley road for the accommodation of passengers than was ever known before. Evidently railroad business generally is booming.

—A valuable mare belonging to Mr. Johnathan Woomer, residing near Bald Eagle Furnace, was stolen from the stable of Mr. Woomer on Tuesday night last. No trace of the stolen animal has yet been found, although he offers a reward of $50 for her return. She is described as being fourteen or fifteen hands high, five years old, with a little white on her forehead and a rupture lump on her belly. If anybody in this vicinity knows anything of such an animal they connot make $50 easier than by informing Mr. Woomer of the fact.

The Printers' Picnic.

The fourth annual picnic and reunion of the Juniata Valley Printers' Association, held at Bedford Springs on Friday and Saturday last, was successful so far as numbers were concerned. About every printing establishment in the district was represented, and altogether among themselves they had a pretty good time. The accommodations were miserable, and the proprietor of the Springs Hotel cannot be censured too severely for his ungentlemanly and and rogueish action with those who were unfortunate enough to stop with him. It was announced by the committee that excursionists would be entertained at the rate of $1.50 per day, but when they stepped up to the office to pay their bills they were surprised to find that they were being charged at the rate of three dollars a day for his miserable accommodations. His tables were provided with the cheapest, half-cooked provisions, and the sleeping rooms of his rotten, half-tumbled-down buildings were uncarpeted and dirty enough to sicken anyone who entered them. The beds were unkept and hard as a rock, and the bed-bugs held high carnival over their unfortunate victims. We advise everyone who visits Bedford to leave the Springs Hotel severely alone. There are enough good accommodations in the town, and which can be had at a much cheaper rate.

The people of the town are generally kind and generous, and too much cannot be said in praise of the railroad officials for the many kindnesses shown towards the excursionists. The trip over the mountain is pleasant and romantic, and fully worth the time and expense it requires to make it.

Where the next reunion will be held we do not know, but it will most likely take place somewhere along the Juniata river. Mr. P. G. Meek, of this place, was made president of the association, and an entire new executive commitee was elected.

Statistics at the Episcopal Diocese.

From the journal of the tenth annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania, in charge of Bishop Howe, of Reading, the following statistics are taken: Clergymen, including the bishop, 96; parishes and missions, 126; ordinations, 6; of which one was tke priesthood, candidates for holy orders, 3; churches consecrated,4; families, 5,214; church accommodations, 27,304; baptised persons, 12,068; baptism, 1,130, of which 197 were adults; confirmed, 615, communicants,7,064; marriages, 220; burials, 611; Sunday school scholars, 10,163; rectories, 42; school houses 12; cemeteries, 12. Value of church property, $1,115,440; offerings —parochial, $168,405.28; diocesan, $17,100.69, extra diocesan, $9,746.32; total, $195,252.28. It ought to be noted that in many of the items of this summary the report is only an approximation of the truth, many parishes having omitted to make any return. Bishop Howe, in his address, besides diocesan affairs, discusses the action of the general convention upon various matters.

—Forest fires in Clearfield county are doing immense damage. Besides a number of mills burned, and Holt's loss of eight million feet of sawed lumber, J. Baptiste Morin's lumber yard on coal run was burned last Friday. Two million feet is the amount lost by Baptiste, beside over a mile of tramroad. These forests fires open a wide field for incendiaries, who take advantage of circumstances and fire lumber yards, just to see the fun, or perhaps from motives of revenge for some fancied injury. We have information of ten million feet destroyed in that way, when it was clearly evident that forest fires, though not far off, could not have reached the lumber.

—The Cramer Cottages, where part of the Bellefonte delegation stopped while in Bedford on Saturday,is a most delightful place. The Cottages are kept by J.W. Barndollar,and are more of a smmmer boarding place than a regular hotel. It is a quiet, cool, homelike place, with large, handsome grounds and all the requirements for the out-door pleasure and exercise of their guests. It is a fine place in which to spend the warm summer months. Mr. and Mrs. Barndollar treated our party with marked courtesy and kindness.

—Among the immigrants over the Pennsylvania railroad last week was a German family bound for Northern Iowa, consisting of the grandparents and six sons and three daughters, all of whom were married, with their families, on board the same train. There were forty grandchildren and eleven greatgrandchildren, the entire relationship consisting of ninety-five people. Among them were practical farmers, shoemakers, weavers, and mechanics of all kinds. They propose to settle and form a colony of their own.

The Hoopskirt Rage.

The trite saying, "History repeats itself," may not be altogether true, but that fashion repeats itself is unquestioned. The revival of the hoopskirt attachment starts with the small skirt, but before long the immense hogshead style will be seen, transforming our dear young creatures, and a good many of the old ones, into all sorts of ugly shapes. Instead of graceful clinging that has for some time past characterized their dresses, these garments have a swaying motion that is startling to the uninitated. About twenty years ago this same skirt was in style, but the ladies became disgusted with it was discovered that Jeff. Davis had been captured with a hoopskirt on. But there is always a reaction when styles are carried to extremes. The time has not passed entirely out of mind when the ladies used to occupy the whole sidewalk with what appeared to be hot air balloons trimmed with flounces. The larger ones were 150 inches in circumference—twelve feet and a half around—just think of that! The new hoops are made from fifty-five to fifty-six inches, but they are on the increase, and it will not be surprising to see before long larger ones than were ever worn before. The secret of the whole matter is that large dealers in ladies' dress goods find that they can increase the amount of their sales by introducing a style that will demand more surface and at the same time require extra trimmings, and to do this the former beauty of female apparel is to be sacrificed.

The Pay of Militiamen.

We find the following article concerning the pay of the National Guard going the rounds of the press, and for the information of members of the Guard residing in this place we clip it and give it to them. It relates to the five days' service during the several encampments, and is as follows: The Major General, $104 15; Brigadier General, $75 40, Colonel, $48 60; Lieutenant Colonel, $41 65; Major, $34 70; Captain, Quartermaster and Adjutant, $25; First Lieutenant, $20 08; Second Lieutenant, $18 45; Chaplain, $20 85; Principal Musician,$15; First Sergeant and non-commissioned staff, each $15; Sergeant, $10; Corporal, $8 75; enlisted men, $7 50. The commissioned officers furnish their own mess and care for their own horses, while the others are all supplied by the State, the rations being superior to the regular army.

A Lawyer's Meanness.

The Troy, N. Y. Times relates the following little incident which happened in the depot at that city recently,and if true, for pure, unadulterated meanness it out-does the world: The meanest lawyer in the county is to be found at Troy. A blind man went to the West Troy depot to buy a ticket for Albany. One of the two men standing by offered to obtain it for him. The blind man handed $1 to the stranger, who entered a grocery store, changed the dollar for small coin, and coming back handed the blind stranger 75 cents and a piece of cardboard cut in the shape of a ticket. His victim found it neccssary to buy a ticket for the remaining 75 cents, which was all he had. The man who committed this deed, is a lawyer, a member of the Albany county Bar.

Important to Firemen.

The law exempting firemen from taxation to the extent of $5, applies to "members of any organized volunteer fire department of any town, city, borough or township of this State, under control of any town committee, common council or municipal corporation, which are now or may hereafter be established." The law provides that the certificate of the chief engineer, or of the assistant engineer or of the mayor, or either of them, shall be sufficient voucher and authority for the assessor or collector of taxes to deduct the sum from any tax assessed against any member of a volunteer fire department under the control of any town council or town committee.

Veteran Club Reunion.

The annual reunion of the Veteran Club of Centre county, which takes place at Spring Mills on Saturday next, gives every promise of being a very successful event. Something over a hundred veterans from Mifflin county have signified their intentions of being present, and a special train from Union county is expected to bring many more. We have been requested to announce that owing to some misunderstanding invitations prepared for veterans residing in Bellefonte and vicinity failed to be sent out, and all those who received no card will please overlook this shortcoming on the part of those whose duty it was to attend to it.

—The up-stairs grades of the public schools open to-day, so children may now get down their books sharpen slate pencils, and have all things in readiness for the event.

—We wonder if the poet who wrote "knowledge is wealth" ever conducted a country newspaper.

Personal Mention.

Lutherans in Council.

The Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Central Pennsylvania is nowin session at Newport, Perry county, and a correspondent sends us the following particulars in regard to its workings:

The Synodical Sunday-school Convention opened its session on Tuesday evening of last week, and continued its work through Wednesday. It was a very successful session throughout, and at its close elected the following officers: President, Rev. J. M. Reimensnyder, of Lewistown; Secretary; Rev. J. A. Koser, of Pine Grove Mills; Treasurer, Rev. J. A. Copenhaver, of McAllsterville.

The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the synod convened on Wednesday evening, and throughout Thursday continued its work of laying plans for future operations. The former officers of the society were re-elected for another year, as follows: President, Mrs. Rev. Unangst, of Lewistown; Vice President, Miss Sallie Kleckner, of Mifflinburg; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Rev. Fair, of Bellefonte; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Rev. Heilman, of Lock Haven; Treasurer, Mrs. Rev. Reimensnyder, of Lewistown.

The opening sermon of the synod was preached to an immense and intensely interested audience on Wednesday evening by Rev. S. E. Furst, of Bellefonte. On Thursday the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Rev. W. E. Fischer, of Centre Hall; Secretary, Rev. J. Yutzy, of Lemont; Treasurer, Rev. W. H. Diven, of Salona. The meeting of the Synod at this writing is brisk, bright, harmonious, progressive, and is marked by a promptness and energy that are truly refreshing.

The Approaching Convention.

As the time for holding the Republican Convention for Centre county approaches every member of the party should have a watchfulness for the party's interest, and see to it that none but the very best men are nominated for the several offices—men whose integrity and ability are unquestioned. Of the names presented for the office of Commissioner, we know of none better qualified to perform the functions of the office, and whose ability would have more weight at the polls, than that of Mr. George Taylor, of Milesburg, a true-blue Republican and an excellent gentleman. We commend Mr. Taylor to the careful consideration of the Convention, and feel that his nomination would add untold strength to the ticket.

—Our citizens manifested considerable interest in Presidential news yesterday, and are generally satisfied with the result. They look forward hopefully now.
